GOVERNMENT COST LOWER UNDER G.O.P.

DONAHEY BUILDING AN ALIBI STATEMENT OF C. C. CRABBE

Refutes the Charge Made By the Governor That the Threatened State Treasury Deficit Is Due to a Legislative Trick--Donahey's Administration Cost One Million More Than That of Governor Davis.

the gasoline tax bill over the governor's veto, there would have been an increased deficit of over $10,000,000 during the present biennium. Had not the last legislature come to the rescue of the present Democratic administration and provided it with at least $10,000,000 a year from the gasoline tax, the state of Ohio would be completely bankrupt and we would have been forced to resort to a state levy or issue bonds to meet operating expenses."

ALLIANCE BROADCASTING.

This may be a familiar announcement to radio fans if the chamber of commerce is successful in its quest. Formal invitation to locate its proposed new broadcasting station in Alliance has been extended to the Westinghouse company at east Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The plan to locate KDKA at Mansfield has apparently fallen thru and Alliance is the nearest city in the field for the station.

Atmospheric conditions in east Pittsburgh, said to have scrambled the KDKA wave length, are said to have prompted the company to seek a new site.

ENFORCED VACATION.

Miss Harriet Mooney, teacher of domestic science and English in the Pickaway township schools, is taking an enforced vacation, owing to the schools being closed on account of smallpox. Miss Mooney is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mooney, in Columbus.

MISS LESLIE READ

Miss Leslie Sirlin Read of Fayetteville, Ark., editor of the Fayetteville News, and chairman of press and publicity for the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

A meeting of the Health Project, a society formed for the home care of the sick in giving first aid, was held at the home of Mrs. Guy Heffner in Saltcreek township Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Thomas Hockman was the assisting hostess. There were fifteen leaders present. The meeting was very interesting.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society of the M. E. church will be held in the church parlors on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

New Philadelphia, O., Feb. 24 (UP)

A training school for nurses will be established shortly at Union hospital, announced J. G. Kaderly, trustee of the hospital. It will have a bed capacity to meet the state board requirements.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From the Wires by Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Columbus—W. O. McCormick, 58, a grocer who moved to Columbus from Cambridge last December, was found dead in his quarters at the Columbus hotel here today, his hand clutching a revolver.

A bullet had penetrated McCormick's skull behind the right ear, according to police who expressed the belief that McCormick committed suicide.

McCormick's wife and daughter reside in Cambridge according to police who found a letter from McCormick, saying McCormick was expected home home for the weekend.

Dayton—"The Lighter-than-air division of the army air services, wants blind men, not men who know anything about flying." A Leo Stevens, veteran aviator, declared here today informally announcing his resignation as chief instructor at the army balloon school, Bellsville, Illinois.

"I stand unqualifiedly with Colonel Billy Mitchell in his charges of inefficiency against the air service," Stevens said.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 24 (UP).—Indigent mothers and families will be taken care of more adequately by many Cleveland social service and women's societies in the near future.

At a meeting last week, a committee to meet with State Health Commissioner J. Monger and other state health officers, was chosen for this purpose.

E. E. Calfee, member of the state health board, present at the Cleveland meeting, said that only six counties in the state were receiving aid under the Shepherd-Towner act for social needs of Ohio. It is the hope of the state bureau to distribute the entire appropriation thruout the state Calfee said.

Bowling Green, O., Feb. 24 (UP).—A large percentage of students participate in international athletics in the Big Ten conference than most persons realize, Professor C. F. Reeb declared in defending conference football against commercialism.

"The receipts from football games make it possible for the other sports to be financed," the professor continued. "Intramural sports are generally recognized as being valuable aids to health."

The American people are the greatest consumers of coal, coffee, sugar, chewing gum and propaganda of any nation in the world—and they seem to like it.

PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER DIED IN COLUMBUS

Dr. William M. Hindman Succumbed to Heart Trouble
---Ill for Some Time.

Dr. William M. Hindman, pastor emeritus of Northminster Presbyterian church, Columbus, died suddenly Monday night at his late residence, 1309 Neil avenue of angina pectoris. He was found dead in bed Tuesday morning, having slept away during the night.

For a number of years Dr. Hindman had been in ill health and it was for this reason he was compelled to give up his active pastorate at Northminster church after having served the congregation about 11 years. He had been pastor emeritus for the past two years.

Dr. Hindman would have been 66 years of age on March 20. He is survived by his wife and five sons, two of whom are ministers of the Presbyterian denomination, Rev. Ralph Hindman, at Danville, Illinois, and Rev. William Jennings Bryan was a member. He also had at one time served Normal Park Presbyterian church, in Chicago.

The illness which resulted in his death was due to partial asphyxiation suffered several years ago when he was overcome by carbon monoxide gas from a furnace at his home. He had been confined to his bed for two weeks prior to his death.

Funeral services will be held in Northminster Presbyterian church, King and Forsythe avenue. Interment will be in Green Lawn cemetery.

SALE AT CORNING.

C. G. Chalfin and son, Jack, motored to Corning Monday morning where he cried a sale at the U. B. church. The sale was largely attended and nearly everything brought good prices. Automobiles, radios, livestock, farm implements, etc., were in the sale.

Those in charge of the sale were so well pleased with Mr. Chalfin's work that they gave him a substantial bonus in appreciation of the good results obtained.

A GOOD SALE.

The public sale of Marcus Owens, Tuesday, February 23, was well attended. The property offered brought high prices. Cows sold for $114, brood sow and pigs $84 and other property accordingly.

The ladies of the Union church served dinner and were well patronized.

C. G. Chalfin was the auctioneer and Harvey Winn was clerk.

ADDRESSED MEN'S CLUB.

Samuel T. Rife made an address Tuesday evening before the Presbyterian Men's club. His subject was "Five Loaves and Two Fishes, or Feeding the Multitude." He handled the subject very nicely and showed that he is a student of the Bible.

DEXTER P. COOPER

Dexter P. Cooper of Eastport Maine, the engineer, who proposes to develop electrical power generated by the rise and fall of the tides in the Bay of Fundy.

RIPE OLD AGE

Levi Hays Dies of Heart Trouble at County Home--Burial in Williamsport.

Levi Hays died at the County Home Monday evening at 10 o'clock. His death was due to heart trouble.

The deceased was a farmer by occupation and he was born in this county, October 11, 1840. He was a son of Norris and Sallie Hurst Hays. He was thrice married and was the father of ten children. The surviving children are: Bruce Hays, of Minneapolis, Minnesota; Misses Mame and Sadie Hays, of Columbus; Mrs. Jennie Caldwell, of Dayton; Thomas Hays, of Chicago, Illinois and Cecil Hays, of Oxford, Indiana.

The funeral services will be held at C. E. Hill's Undertaking Home in Williamsport Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. W. W. Trout will officiate. Interment in Springlawn cemetery. The deceased was the last of his family.

CANDIDATE FOR SENATORSHIP AT STOUTSVILLE

C. E. Wharton Made a Most Favorable Impression at the Farmer's Institute.

C. Wharton, of Kenton, Democratic candidate for the United States senatorship in Ohio, was one of speakers at the Pickaway-Fairfield County Farmers' institute held at Stoutsville and after listening to his address, Mrs. S. E. Cullumber wrote the following letter to Margaret I. Wilson, secretary of the federated clubs of Ohio:

"As my husband is vice president of the joint Farmers' institute of Pickaway and Fairfield counties, and as your candidate for United States senator on the Democratic ticket, Mr. C. E. Wharton, of Kenton, Ohio, was the speaker on our regular program for afternoon and evening of the 22d, I wish to make a report of the same to you.

"We also had two other speakers for that day, one from West Virginia, and another from eastern Ohio, and I wish to state that I consider myself a pretty good Republican, but toward the end of Mr. Wharton's unanswerable speech of wit, logic and facts, I felt myself slipping as far as his candidacy for senator was concerned, and at the end of his speech it was completely shattered.

"While our large hall was completely filled as was also the foyer, at the conclusion of the speech it was plain to be seen that Mr. Wharton had completely captured our institute, as remarks on all sides were heard; 'the best speech I ever heard,' 'nothing like it ever in Stoutsville,' 'the most illuminating speech ever,' 'We are with you,' 'give us more.'

"The other two speakers were completely 'flabbergasted' and could not answer a single one of his arguments, and at the evening session, after the audience had completely filled the hall, the chairman announced that those who desired to hear Mr. Wharton speak would have to go upstairs to another hall, and those who desired to hear the other two speakers should remain in their seats.

"At this announcement, with the exception of a baker's dozen, all arose and proceeded upstairs to hear Mr. Wharton, and as the regular chairman did stay down to console the other two speakers who had a pout on them, and one of the leading ministers of our town volunteered for the occasion, Rev. L. E. Hill, of the Evangelical church, acted as chairman of the meeting.

Mr. Wharton poured another volley of information into his audience which filled the hall, aisles and standing room.

"At the end of his speech, it was plain to be seen that by the ovation he received that he had so completely endeared himself into the hearts of our people that I am quite sure that he will get every Democratic vote in this section on primary day, and I shall proceed at once to organize a Women's Wharton for Senator Republican club to boost for him on primary and election day."

FOLLOW THE CROWD

Some firms advertise by mailing circulars. Pickaway County has about 5,000 homes. Circulars mailed to each home costs the sender about $150.

Money spent in this manner must be added to the overhead expense and the customer pays that expense.

The Circleville Welding Co.'s policy has always been to reduce expense and give the customer the benefit of the saving. Having been in business for the past six years we need no introduction. All the leading industries of Circleville and the many surrounding towns have their work done here. Why not you. We don't do a cheap job merely to meet competition but do you a real 100 percent job at as a reasonable price as possible.

Welding and brazing is our business, nothing else. Bring your next job here and compare the difference in workmanship.

Atlanta Home Wins Award In National Better Homes Demonstration Competition

Atlanta Home No. 1.

ATLANTA divided with Santa Barbara, Calif., the highest award in the 1925 Better Homes in America campaign. This year 2,000 American communities, large and small, took part in this educational work, every state being well represented.

Atlanta demonstrated three homes, the picture illustrating "Home No. 1." It is a six-room house, the plan for which was secured from the Architects' Small House Service Bureau, slight changes being made to adapt the house particularly to Atlanta conditions. It was built for $6,750. The lot costing $1,000. It is thus within the reach of the family with an income of from $3,500 to $4,500 a year.

The kitchen is particularly well planned. The sink is placed directly below a window, and is equipped with double drain boards. Built-in cupboards on each side of the work table add to the convenience of this room. The house is a model of compactness, with three bedrooms on the second floor, a living room, dining room and kitchen on the first floor, and a large garret which can be fitted up as a play room.

Thousands of visitors were led through the house by a committee of hostesses, and were presented with booklets listing the cost of each article of furniture and furnishings in each room, together with a suggested budget for the sort of family which would occupy a house of this type.

The city government, the churches, the schools, and, in fact, every organization of a civic, commercial, or industrial character endorsed and co-operated in the campaign.

The Better Homes movement has the endorsement and co-operation of men and women of national reputation. Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, is president of Better Homes in America. Another cabinet member, Dr. Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior, is a member of the advisory council. Dr. Work, speaking of the movement, said:

"The home is the sanctified center from which civilization evolved, and efforts toward its upbuilding are bound to produce a better people and a better America."

Mrs. A. H. Reeve, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, whose picture is shown above, is also a member of the advisory council.

Scarves Short and Long, Many Colored and Futuristic, Lend Color and Gayety to the Spring Costume

The long scarf of brilliant futuristic design tied about the neck in smart stock tie fashion has been recently introduced for Spring wear. Norma Shearer is shown wearing this new scarf mode in "The Devil's Circus," her latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production.

HE KEPT PROMISE TO THE END

Chicago, Feb. 22.—(UP.)—Sixty-two years ago Ernest Beckman's father came home and gave him a pistol. The gun was the newest thing in firearms at that time and Ernest was told to keep it during his life time.

Today Ernest Beckman was found in his bedroom, a bullet through his head. The gun his father gave him 62 years ago was clutched in his right hand. Only five of the six bullets which had been in it 62 years ago were still intact.

Right Use of Wealth
When wealthy, show thy wisdom not to be to wealth a servant, but to make wealth serve thee.—Sir J. Denham.

CENTRAL AMERICA

Said To Offer Best Solution of the Rubber Problem.

American rubber interests, aroused out of their long sleep by the British embargo, are appropriating millions with which to go afield and provide the United States with home-owned sources of supply. Firestone has crossed the Atlantic to Africa and leased a million acres in Liberia. The Government has surveyed the Philippines and estimates that 70,000 tons of rubber per year can eventually be produced there. Others talk of Sumatra and neighboring far East islands.

The Philippines would be a natural first choice, but a quarter century of American rule has failed to make of them a country productive of anything but political and economic unrest. The native Legislature has effectually prohibited the culture of rubber by American interests by passing land laws which make it illegal for others than Filipinos to own enough land to create a successful plantation.

The chief objection to all these aforementioned proposals, including the Philippines, is that they place the home-owned source far from home.

Still other interests talk of Central America, and their project would seem to us the most logical that has been put forward.

The Central American republics are near by; they are tropical; they offer cheap labor. The United States excludes foreign interference with the Monroe doctrine. Here should be the ideal site for American enterprise to build up a rubber supply.

Trade treaties which would permit the free entrance of United States capital into Central America and of Central American products into the United States would profit both parties to the negotiations. The rubber interests, to our way of looking at it, may wisely investigate Central America before going too far afield.—Chicago Tribune.

NON-UNION MINER KILLED IN HOME

Pomeroy, Feb. 22.—(UP.)—While bloodhounds and a posse scoured the surrounding county for his assailants, Sam Hill, 42-year-old non-union miner, died here this afternoon.

Hill was called to the door of his home during the night and riddled with bullets. At least 25 unidentified men composed the firing squad, according to Sheriff Rice.

ONCE PROUD MONITOR, LAST OF TYPE, JOINS JUNK PILE

U. S. S. Cheyenne, Still in Good Order, Goes to Keep Her Rendezvous With Davy Jones.

Baltimore, Md.—Trailing ignominiously at the end of a towline, a once proud monitor and last of her type recently moved toward her grave—a junk pile at Hampton roads. One of four sister ships laid down in 1904, the Cheyenne, originally the Wyoming, started her death march alone with the U. S. S. Owl, a navy yard tug, stealing ahead like a conscience-stricken executioner. The Tallahassee, the last of her sisters, felt the acetylene torch 20 years ago. Sixty-six years back in American history the monitor type, embodied in John Ericsson's Monitor, nemesis of the Merrimac, revolutionized naval practice. Monitors maintained President Lincoln's blockade of southern ports during the Civil war. The present and last monitor, living to see her once all-powerful type belittled by modern development, epitomized naval progress when she served as a mother ship for submarines on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts during the World war. The Cheyenne, then the Wyoming, also was the first naval vessel to feel the thrust of modern oil-burning engines. Experiments conducted aboard the Wyoming have since led the Navy department to take steps for the conversion of all remaining coal burners. For more than five years the Cheyenne has served as the training ship of the Fifth Naval Reserve district and with her passing the Baltimore water front loses a bit of romance. The original Monitor indirectly was protecting this port when it destroyed the Merrimac in Hampton roads. Under her own power, around the Virginia capes from Philadelphia, the Cheyenne came to Baltimore in October, 1920. It is through no fault of her own that she is dragged away on the end of a chain, like a criminal to the gibbet. Her engines are sturdy and fit, her propeller trim—but she is obsolete and her crew is gone. Part of her crew has been transferred to Eagle boat 56, her successor, and the remainder has gone on the inactive list. So, with her fireroom cold and her decks deserted, the last of the monitors keeps her rendezvous with Davy Jones.

Blood Reveals Race

History, Tests Show

Berlin.—Blood tests to identify descendants of those who crossed the Atlantic in the Mayflower or to expose fake survivors of the Light brigade soon will be possible, if experiments of Dr. E. O. Manoloff, Russian blood specialist, are extended, this scientist claims.

The old adage "blood will tell," is literally true, Doctor Manoloff says. Though his experiments have been limited to Europeans, he asserts that by blood analyses he can tell a Chinese from a Japanese, a German from a Pole. Out of 1,382 Russians and Jews whose ancestry has been traced, Doctor Manoloff said that his tests enabled him to distinguish between the two races with 88 per cent accuracy.

At a clinic attended by five distinguished savants who took samples of blood from 202 persons of various races and nationalities, Doctor Manoloff, without seeing the persons, diagnosed correctly the nationalities and race of 187, an error of only 7.5 per cent. His analyses are based upon color solutions.

"Captain Mollie" to Be Moved to West Point

Albany, N. Y.—J. P. Morgan has given permission for the removal of the remains of Margaret Corbin—"Captain Mollie" of Revolutionary war fame—from the grave of his estate at Highland Falls. They will be reburied in the West Point cemetery in April with ceremonies conducted by the New York state branch of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

"Captain Mollie" did her bit in the battle of Fort Mifflin on upper Manhattan island November 16, 1776. When her husband, a gunner, was struck down by a ball, she took his place and served with great credit until she was wounded by grapeshot, which nearly severed her arm and part of her breast.

As a reward for her heroism the supreme council of Philadelphia granted her an award of $30 and got her a pension. Her battle wounds were the ultimate cause of her death.

Educate Chinese With 1,000-Letter Alphabet

Pekingfu, Chihli.—Public-spirited Chinese with sufficient learning to qualify as teachers have undertaken a movement for the education of the masses of China.

"Jimmie" Yen, product of Yale and Princeton, leads the undertaking. He and his associates have selected from the formidable mass of Chinese characters, a thousand common ones with which they assert books and papers on almost any subject can be written.

A million of the "thousand character" text-books have been put in circulation, each costing the equivalent of a dime. Vacant temples or residences have been borrowed for school rooms and the practice of writing in the air with the finger is resorted to where blackboards or slates are not available.

Gold Discoveries

Gold was discovered in Malacca in 1731; in New Andalusia in 1755; in Ceylon in 1800. Gold was discovered in California in September, 1847, and in Australia in 1851. It is estimated that between 1851 and 1859 gold to the value of $450,000,000 was exported from Victoria, Australia, alone.

Egyptians First Surveyors

The art of land surveying owes its origin to the fact that the Egyptians were unable to keep permanent monuments on land which was overflowed every year by the Nile. Under such circumstances it became necessary to have some means of reidentifying the various pieces of land.

Mutually Tired

John Paul Ragsdale, Jr., five years old, is a winsome youngster, quite popular with the juvenile colony of Whittier place. Only occasionally does John Paul transgress the laws laid down by his mother, but recently he happened to "get in bad" and it was necessary to administer a lecture or two.

The last one was at the dinner table where John Paul was listening politely to his mother's advice. Finally she said: "Now, John Paul, I am getting mighty tired of giving these lectures, mighty tired."

John Paul promptly replied: "Yes, mother, and I'm mighty tired of being the audience."—Indianapolis News.

Women and Wireless

Many women are finding careers of one kind or another in wireless as entertainers. There are openings as lecturers for women possessed of expert knowledge of matters of particular interest to their sex. The field, however, is somewhat restricted by the fact that women's voices are generally inferior to men's for broadcasting purposes, although, as a broadcasting official pointed out recently, this may be the fault of the microphone, not of women's vocal organs.

Cow Was Miffed

A cow hurled into the lake at Wlarton, Ontario, while landing from a small steamer, turned upon the boat and attacked it with such force that it punctured the hull below the water line. The boat was taken to a marine railway, where it was decided that it would be necessary to have repairs made at a drydock.

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

TYPHOID fever has been for centuries one of the most dangerous diseases which afflict man. It was long confused with typhus fever and malaria. People still talk occasionally about "typho-malarial fever." As the farmer said about the giraffe, "There ain't no such animal." The two diseases are entirely distinct.

Typhoid fever is caused by a little germ or plant, the typhoid bacillus.

Every typhoid germ comes from the discharges from the kidneys or bowels of someone who has had typhoid. The germs can originate in no other way. So typhoid fever is very appropriately called a "filth" disease.

How do the germs enter the body? In dirty milk or dirty water or through food contaminated by flies or by dirty hands.

The germs always get into the body through the mouth. After being swallowed, they pass through the stomach into the small intestine where they grow just as plants grow in a hothouse.

The germs in growing produce a poison or toxin, which causes fever, delirium and, in severe cases, death. Man is the only animal susceptible to this disease.

We know all about typhoid fever. It is entirely preventable.

Every case of typhoid fever is due to someone's ignorance or carelessness. One health authority has said "For every case of typhoid someone should be hanged."

How can we prevent it?

By using only pure water. Drink no water from surface wells where seepage or drainage from outhouses or cesspools is possible.

Practically all our large cities now supply pure water so typhoid fever, today, is largely a rural disease.

If you are not sure your water is pure, boil it for twenty minutes and then cool it.

By using pure milk. Protect the milk from dirty water. Sterilize all cans or buckets by steaming or boiling.

If in doubt, pasteurize the milk by heating it for twenty minutes to 145 degrees F.

By protecting food of all kinds from flies, which carry the typhoid germs on their feet. This was proved at Camp Chickamauga during the Spanish-American war.

By protecting food from contamination by dirty hands. Wash your hands before eating. See that all those who handle your food have clean hands.

If everything which goes into your mouth is clean, you will never have typhoid fever.

Estelle Acquires Perfect Form

Running Several Blocks Daily, Plus Diet and Exercise, Does Trick

ESTELLE CLARK, one of the charming newcomers of the screen, who plays a feature role in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Merry Widow," in which the charming Mae Murray stars, has lost something she hopes never to find again. In fact, she runs several blocks daily to keep away from it. But she has also found something she hopes never to lose again too!—a perfect form!

It is a little matter of fifteen pounds that Estelle lost in three weeks, and she declares she was not hungry once, and gets along beautifully without the surplus avoirdupois.

Her method was simple, and at no time stringent.

She went on a diet of fruit and vegetables, avoiding especially starchy foods, such as potatoes and bread, and eating peaches, melons, grapes, carrots and salads without an abundance of rich dressing.

In addition, she exercised strenuously to music for ten minutes each day, doing bending exercises and dance steps, high kicking and the split. Along with this she ran several blocks each day.

Estelle dedicates her method to all suffering fat womankind gratis. Give one look at Estelle's legs, girls, and in the words of the Bible, "Go thou and do likewise!"

MEN'S DRESS
By
W. A. Churchill, Secretary
BORN TAILORS GUILD

The Effect of Good Dressing

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN appeared at the French court dressed like an ordinary farmer. The treaty of alliance between the United States and France was signed against a most sumptuous background of gorgeously dressed courtiers in satin breeches, gold-braided coats, buckled slippers and powdered wigs. The king was there in all his regal splendor. The assembly room was bedecked with the most lavish brilliance of the period.

And in the midst of all this splendor stood the American envoy in his faded old brown suit and holding a shabby, fur cap in his hands. This incongruous appearance was taken, both at home and abroad, as being representative of American simplicity and democracy but nothing could be further from the facts. Franklin had, it was afterward learned, ordered a suitable court costume from his tailor, one that would enable him to take his place with satisfaction among the diplomats and nobles of Europe. But the costume was not finished in time.

The effect of proper dressing is just as great upon a man as it is with women. It gives him a self-confidence and self-esteem that is not gained in any other way. The very fact that some men tend to be careless and negligent about their clothes gives an added asset to the man who does know what to wear and when to wear it.

The American citizen of today demands a higher standard of tailoring and appearance than ever before. Each year has brought an increased consciousness among men. Starting with a well-tailored custom-made suit, the 1925 man selects shoes and socks a few shades darker, a hat that will tone with but not match the suit and a tie that affords a pleasing but not pronounced contrast. He looks well, he knows it and is in keeping with the slogan, "dressed to succeed."

Best Out of 9,903,540 Cows

When Mollie, owned by James E. Larowe of Detroit, Mich., was chosen as champion grade Holstein cow at the National Dairy Show at Indianapolis, she automatically became the best out of 9,903,540 Holstein grade cows in America. Mollie, who is five years old, is the granddaughter of Cedar Lawn Canary Paul who won the championship at the National Dairy Show in 1920, and whose head, neck, crest and rump were chosen by the Holstein Freisian association as typical of the True Holstein bull. In the 39th year that she was in milk last year, she produced 12,904 pounds of milk and 571.9 pounds of butterfat. She is now on the farm at Detroit.

GENERAL SHERWOOD
LOVER OF HORSES

The horse lost a good friend when Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood died recently, says the New York Herald Tribune. The standard-bred, or trotting horse, had the warmest place in the affections of the late congressman from Ohio, though he was fond of a good horse of any sort, and for many years he drove one of the best pairs to be seen on the streets of Washington. He could drive with rare skill, and those with a love for a nice team, well turned out, never failed to stop and follow with an admiring eye Gen.

eral Sherwood and his horses as they passed through the streets of the capital. Though past eighty years, he never lost an opportunity thus to take the air.

The horse has done much for many men in public life in their declining years. That hackneyed phrase about nothing being so good for the inside of a man as the outside of a horse, holds good with as much force today as when it was first uttered.

Turkeys move right along. Her Nationalist government has decreed the introduction of our Roman alphabet to displace the cumbersome and inadequate Arabic.

EASTERN STAR

FIND FOOTPRINTS 25
MILLION YEARS OLDMarks Made by Animals
Long Since Extinct.

Washington.—Footprints made in the sand approximately twenty-five million years ago by animals long since extinct have been discovered in the Grand canyon of the Colorado river. They have been preserved indelibly in the record of the rocks. In this instance the Coconino sandstone of Arizona.

Dr. Charles W. Gilmore, the paleontologist who uncovered many of these ancient tracks, has brought specimens of them to Washington. He describes the unique exhibit for the first time in a bulletin of the Smithsonian institution.

Hard to Grasp.

The human mind, according to Doctor Gilmore, can scarcely grasp the idea of the vast age of animal life on the earth that is presented by these strange footprints. Some tracks of extinct quadrupeds were first discovered in the Grand canyon in 1915 by Prof. Charles Schuchert. In 1924 Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie institution of Washington conceived the idea of having a permanent exhibit of the footprints in place, just as they were found, so that the tourist that visits the Grand canyon may see them.

Such an exhibit has been prepared on the Hermit trail by Doctor Gilmore, in addition to the specimens brought to Washington. The tracks include those of new and unknown species that lived in the wet sand of this region when the earth was much younger. The Smithsonian institution hopes later to do similar work in other localities and to take steps to preserve such natural phenomena.

"The great antiquity of these footprints, which occur from 900 to 1,080 feet below the level of the present rim of the canyon," says Doctor Gilmore, "is clearly demonstrated at this locality.

Beyond Comprehension.

It is obvious that since the day when those animals impressed their feet in what at that time was moist sand, more than 1,000 feet of rock-making strata above them, and this does not take into account many hundreds of feet more that have been eroded off from the present top of the canyon wall.

"The great length of time required for the cutting away or erosion of the rock to form the deep canyon, and the even longer time necessary for the original deposition of this great mass of stone is, when translated in terms of years, if that were possible, so stupendous as to be almost beyond human comprehension.

"It is hoped that the object lesson so graphically taught by this unique exhibit may serve as an example to stimulate the preparation and preservation of other natural phenomena to be found in our government controlled parks, monuments and reservations."

Radio Heat for Homes
Next Step for Science

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The broadcasting of heat by radio is only a matter of years, in the opinion of Prof. S. E. Dibble of Carnegie Institute of Technology, who, it became known, is making a study of the problem.

Mr. Dibble, president of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, and holder of the Aigens professorship in plumbing, heating and ventilating, believes "It is no more improbable to broadcast heat waves than it was to broadcast sound waves."

Sending heat to consumers via the air is now the problem of research men and laboratory workers, who must "discover instruments to control heat waves, especially a detector which will pick them up and hold and amplify them," says Professor Dibble.

Transmission of heat by atmospheric conductivity is essential because of the gradual exhaustion of the elements of fuel, said the professor, adding, "The day is not far off, in my opinion, when we will see huge centralized heating plants broadcasting heat to homes, industries and office buildings."

Plans to Blow Coal
From Mines to Mills

Pittsburg, Kan.—Coal, pulverized at the mines here and blown to Kansas City through pipe lines for fuel for steel mills and other industrial purposes, is the prediction made by Ira Clemens, one of the leading coal operators of this field.

Clemens estimates that from the unclaimed coal lands in this district there is sufficient to produce 400,000 tons annually, which will last for more than half a century. He also has visions of gas plants built to generate gas from the coal and by a redistilling process make gasoline from it. Coal hauled by trucks from here to the nearby large cities will be seen in a few years, he states, and predicts a bright future for the Kansas coal industry, which this winter is enjoying unusual prosperity.

Blinded by Hawk

Canby, Ore.—After shooting a large hawk T. P. Lee stooped over the bird to pick it up. The hawk, still alive thrust his bill into one of the man's eyes. Doctors said Lee would lose the sight of both eyes.

When Judge Changed Law
In the trial of Algonon Sydney, friend of William Penn, Sydney was executed for taking part in the Rye House plot. The law required two witnesses. It was found that there was but one; whereupon Judge Jeffreys made the ruling. The circumstance against Sydney was that he had written an unpublished manuscript against monarchy.

x HARTMAN THEATER. x
x x x x x x x

The biggest thrill of many seasons in the American theater was provided late in the summer of 1924 when "What Price Glory" burst on Broadway with a report which has echoed across the continent. "What Price Glory" is the only play about the war of which men who have been in the thick of it say; "This is it!" "What Price Glory" comes to the Hartman theater, Columbus, for one week beginning Monday February 22, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

This picture of the war is revealed almost unconsciously by its authors. Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson never planned to make history with their play. Their modest intent was to tell the story—a grinning comedy, in truth—of a battle between two hardboiled Marines for the favors of a peasant girl in a shell-torn corner of France.

But so alive, throbbing and vivid-fisted are those characters, so vivid are the scenes, that those who have yearned to know how the war looked and felt and tasted come away from "What Price Glory" with the conviction that they now know something of the war as these men know it. Gargantuan figures they are, Flagg and Quirt. Beasts, men and gods—something of each. To know them is to see life magnified, made more beautiful, more horrible, more devilish and more divine than we, in our cramped lives, can hope to live it.

Captain Flagg and Sergeant Quirt, as impersonated by Louis Wolheim and William Boyd, are unforgettable. Indeed the whole company of Marines, French peasants, staff officers and camp followers is so perfectly cast that the play offers a cross section of the French front seen thru the eyes of a laughter-loving American.

Among Those Present
By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

HE HAD been on that proverbial, if somewhat exaggerated, jaunt up and down the world, looking for her. And now, idly scanning the list of guests at a party given in honor of a famous film star, he found her name—Dawn Morrow. It must be she; there could be but one Dawn Morrow.

He recalled, now, as vividly as if it had been yesterday, his first glimpse of her. She must have been about fourteen and she had come out on the putting green to give her father a message that had been telephoned to the club from his office. He, Donald Harper, had been her father's carrier.

After that he often caddied for her. She was learning golf that summer and it had been his last season on the links—he thought boys over seventeen who couldn't do better than caddie to help out with their approaching college expenses were not much good. And thus, Dawn Morrow had passed out of his life. She did not even know his name. She always called him "Caddie."

Now, having taken his bar examinations and having been taken into a large law office to serve his apprenticeship at his profession, he still wondered where the lovely little girl was and never until today had he seen or heard of her. And now, it was only in a list of "Among Those Present" at a big party.

He continued to search for her on the street, in the theater. He scanned newspapers and magazines for her name.

One day it occurred to him to hunt up a friend who he knew was a member of the golf club at which he had first seen Dawn. It was just possible, he conjectured, that her father was still a member and that he had continued his game of golf.

It did not take him long to get in touch with Elliott Gordon and get himself invited to the Country club on a Saturday afternoon in October when anyone who played golf would be sure to be out. He did not explain to his friend his reason for wanting to be his guest but merely said that he had once caddied out on that course and had a fancy to have a go at the game now, as a full-fledged player.

Out on the links, every hole and every hazard of which he knew like a map, he felt a thrill of enthusiasm for life that he had not experienced for years. He had studied pretty hard at college, majored in law his senior year and worked to pay expenses during the summers. Now, to play, to feel himself firmly planted on the road to success in his chosen profession and—to have the hope that just across any bunker he might see the face of the girl he had held in his vision for so long—this was joy indeed!

His game was nothing to brag about and his friend twitted him not a little.

But there was a tang in the air that made even the poorest golfer enjoy his game and the two finished the eighteen holes just as a great red sunset was being staged over the western hills adjoining the club.

"Nothing beats a royally red sunset in the country," remarked Elliott.

"Nothing but a glorious Dawn," murmured Donald, lost in the vision of a girl's face.

"Speaking of Dawn—do you know Dawn Morrow, the artist?" asked Elliott. "Don't look now—she's over at that corner table."

Donald nearly cramped his muscles to keep from turning at once to gaze upon the girl. "Is she alone?" he asked, stupidly, for want of poise in which to seek an intelligent question.

"No—she's with her dad, John Morrow. Great old golfer, that boy," remarked Elliott, smiling.

Donald had half turned so that he might behold the face he so longed to see. How lovely she was! How more than lovely she had grown!

"Hello, Gordon, how's the game?" called out Mr. Morrow as he caught sight of Elliott.

"Come over," said Elliott to his friend, as he stepped forward to greet the Morrrows.

"I've often caddied for you, Mr. Morrow," Donald found himself saying.

"Oh—I thought I knew you—Caddie," laughed Dawn, giving him her warm little hand and beaming on him as if he had been a long-lost relative.

The use of the old name made Donald's heart beat even more furiously, and while the two golfers discussed their game, he and Dawn became acquainted again—this time as man and woman.

It is not necessary for anyone to have to say that the two were lost in each other, that they went over the years they had been separated only to find that they had had a mutual longing for a renewal of what they now admitted was their first romance.

"I'm afraid I shall always call you my Caddie," Dawn told him that night after they had all dined.

On the way back to town that night Elliott talked to a man who was soaring high, as if in a dream.

"Snap out of it, Don, old man," he said. "I sort o' felt there was something doing today when we came out here together. And there was."

HOME CARE OF THE SICK FOLK BEING TAUGHT

Trained Specialist Met With Leaders From All Old School Districts.

Wednesday, February 17, Miss Wanda Przyluska met with twenty farm women, representing thirteen townships for the first days work in "Home Care of the Sick."

Miss Przyluska is the health specialist in home economics, Ohio State university. She is a graduate nurse and a highly trained specialist in this line.

Each township has a leader and assistant leader who attend the meetings at Circleville. Every old school district has a local leader and an assistant. The township leaders meet with the school district leaders to give them the work. The district leaders meet with the women in the district and pass the work on to them.

The township leaders and assistant leaders are; Mrs. D. C. Heffner and Mrs. S. Croman, Washington; Mrs. James Swearingen and Mrs. George Shook, Jackson; Mrs. E. C. Rector and Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Deercreek; Mrs. C. M. Beatty and Mrs. Dan VanVickle, Scioto; Mrs. Cora Rader Hood and Mrs. Alva Dyer, Pickaway; Mrs. Turney Glick and Mrs. John Walters, Circleville; Mrs. C. D. Rector, Wayne; Mrs. J. N. McKinley and Mrs. T. E. Ginder, Muhlenberg; Mrs. Guy Heffner and Mrs. Thomas Hockman, Saltcreek; Mrs. C. E. Dick, Monroe; Mrs. Walter Berger, Harrison; Mrs. Archie Peters, Madison and Mrs. Lenora Wright, Perry.

The first lesson covered bed making giving bath to patient in bed, changing bedding with patient in bed, care and furnishing of sick room.

AMUSEMENTS

The combination of Hobart Henley as the director and Norma Shearer as the star, with Lew Cody, is proving an irresistible one. The trio that made "A Slave of Fashion" have contributed another picture called "His Secretary" at the Met theater. To say that it is a scream is putting it mild, indeed.

Hobart Henley seems to be stepping ahead by leaps and bounds. First a success at directing pictures abounding in human interest like "The Flirt" and "The Gay Old Dog," he then changed his type of story to the ultra-sophisticated ones like "So This Is Marriage," and "His Secretary." He directs with a finesse and surety of touch, as if he were absolutely certain of the effect upon his audience.

Norma Shearer's Best Work
Norma Shearer has never done better work. In the early scenes of "His Secretary," she buries every bit of her natural charm under a makeup of prim stenographer. You have met the character many times yourself, sometimes as a stenographer, sometimes a school teacher, and you just know she would enjoy an afternoon at the "sewing circle." I don't know of another actress who would dare appear to such personal disadvantage as Miss Shearer does in this, and it is sometimes hard to believe that it is the beautiful Norma. When she emerges from her chrysalis, her homeliness in the early scenes only emphasizes her natural beauty.

Lew Cody is now firmly entrenched in the comedy field. He is a much greater comedian than he ever has been as a "heavy," and if you don't believe it, visit the Met theater this week. His years as the suave villain have fitted him, however, for the playing of subtle comedy.

River Leaves Much Silt
Farmers in the Imperial valley of California pay nearly $1,000,000 a year for dredging out of irrigation systems the silt deposited by the Colorado river. Engineers have estimated the Colorado river carries past Yuma 190,000,000 tons of silt annually, and that an average of 185,000 cubic yards of it goes into the Imperial valley district every month.

LOANS up to $500

Adding in the carrying charge as part of the cost when you buy a thing "on time" is good practice in one sense, but doubtful in another. It enables a great many people to buy things that otherwise they could never afford to own. It also increases business production and in that manner improves the general prosperity of the country. But from the standpoint of the individual buyer, it makes a doubtful bargain, because all the "ifs" are in favor of the seller. If you pay too fast, you pay too much interest. If you pay too slowly, all you have previously paid may be sacrificed and you risk losing what you bought besides. Under the popular City Loan Plan you can borrow the cash to buy what you want, and pay the carrying charge—not in advance, but month to month just as you go.

Ecclesiastical Joke

A new version of an age-old religious joke is ascribed to the French Abbe Wetterle who, in the course of an argument with an anticlericalist deputy, was asked if he believed in heaven and hell and, if so, in which of them he hoped to spend the hereafter. To this the abbe replied that a straightforward answer was difficult in the premises, because it was sometimes difficult to choose between climate and company.

Cover Crops Lower Temperature Some

Tests Show Frost Hazard Is Increased Slightly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture has conducted several experiments in citrus-growing sections of California to determine what influence a cover crop has on the temperature of the orchard atmosphere on a frosty night. Purple vetch, a heavy volunteer crop of Broad Windsor horse beans, and many high weeds were included in the cover crop in these experiments.

The conclusions reached were that while the cover crop increased the frost hazard very slightly, the difference made in the temperature was not such as to damage the fruit seriously. At a height of five feet above the ground, the air temperature was depressed by the presence of the cover crop only 0.1 degree Fahrenheit, and 1 degree Fahrenheit at a height of 10 inches. Since there is usually but little fruit near the ground these slight differences should have little effect on the damage to fruit.

In many cases increased damage is probably due to the fact that the grove is on lower ground, where the temperature is naturally lower. Differences in the amount of damage between clean cultivated groves and those in cover crops may also be attributed to some other influence than temperature, such as decreased vigor of the tree, due to competition from the cover crop, a less dormant condition of the trees caused by more frequent irrigations, or increased deposit of moisture on the fruit or foliage from dew or frost. The cover crop also acts as a windbreak, allowing the cold air to accumulate near the ground, and preventing it from mixing with the warmer air above.

Make Plans for GardensBefore Planting Time

"Plan the farm garden before planting," advises J. G. Moore, of the University of Wisconsin horticulture department.

"Just as the carpenter cannot build a satisfactory house without a plan prepared in advance, so should a farmer not attempt to plant the garden bed before planning for it," declares this authority. "That the garden is to be small is not a good excuse for neglecting to make a plan, it being all the more important to secure maximum returns in such cases. Therefore," Moore points out, "the wise gardener will plan his garden on paper well in advance of planting time."

According to Moore, the plan should show the location of each row, and the crop to be planted—the distance of each row from one end of the garden—and the sequence for the different plantings, when more than one planting is to be made.

"The soil is a prime factor in a successful garden," he says. "One of the first essentials is that the garden plot have good drainage, for vegetables cannot thrive in water-logged soil." If the land is low and marshy, he advises gardening on raised beds.

Texture of the soil is also very important, Moore believes. He defines the ideal garden soil texture as "fine and loose," and to attain these qualities in soils of the lumpy, heavy type, he recommends adding organic material, or lime, and in some cases, applying sand or using coal ashes, where the soil is extremely heavy.

Milking Three Times a Day Produces More Milk

Recent studies completed by the United States Department of Agriculture on the comparative yield of cows milked twice a day and those milked three times a day will no doubt be viewed by the farm boy and the hired man with the feeling that some one is always taking the joy out of life. The department's milkers have found that milking three times a day produces more milk than twice-a-day milking. In fact, over a short period the increase in production is 12.5 per cent, while over a long period it appears that this increase is even greater. It was noted that cows milked three times a day hold up better near the end of the lactation period than cows milked twice a day. The economy of three-times-a-day milking has not yet been accurately estimated, but it will depend upon several factors, chief of which are quantity of production, cost of labor, and value of product.

Seed Grain Planted in 1926 Needs Treatment

Every farmer should treat his seed grain in 1926 in order to prevent smut, says Dr. E. C. Stakman, a plant disease authority of the University of Minnesota. Besides smut in oats, of which there is always a great deal, Doctor Stakman finds there was an unusually large amount of stinking smut of wheat in 1925. In one country elevator 75 per cent of the wheat which was brought in was badly smutted.

Methods of treating seed wheat differ from those of treating oats and barley. Folder No. 13, entitled "Treatments for Seed Grain," explains the use of copper carbonate dust and formaldehyde and can be obtained without cost on application to the agricultural extension service, University farm, St. Paul. Information as to the spraying plan for treating oats and barley can be obtained by writing the plant disease department, University farm, St. Paul.

Santa Barbara Home Wins In Nation Wide Contest For Beauty, Comfort And Utility

contains six rooms, all on one floor, particularly arranged for comfort and convenience. The exterior, covered with wood siding, is most attractive. The lot was carefully planned and planted according to the directions of a landscape architect. The value of the lot was $2,212, and of the house itself $6,109. The committee showed how, by using a slightly smaller floor plan, which would permit of later additions if desired, the house could be built at a saving of $1,000. The furnishings of the home were acquired on a carefully devised budget and cost $1,592. Booklets were distributed to visitors, listing the cost of all furniture.

The Santa Barbara Better Homes Committee included a number of people with experience in social undertakings. The report showed that the planning and execution of the local campaign there was done in a thorough and competent manner. Complete local co-operation of organizations of all sorts was forthcoming. Thousands of visitors took advantage of the Santa Barbara program during Better Homes Week.

Dr. John M. Fries, chief of the Division of Building and Housing of the United States Department of Commerce, is a member of the board of directors of Better Homes in America, and Mr. John Thider, manager of the Civic Development Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, is a member of the advisory board.

also, strong emphasis was laid upon the educational character of these community undertakings. The Santa Barbara Better Homes committee was headed by Miss Pearl Chase, Secretary of the Community Arts Association.

The principal purpose of Better Homes in America is to illustrate to the millions of American families of moderate incomes how they can make the most of their homes from the standpoints of beauty, comfort, and utility.

The principal demonstration home in Santa Barbara, pictured above, was called "The Home That Budget Built." It was planned and built by the local committee expressly for Better Homes Week. It

KEEPING COWS

Means $93,660 Extra Income For This County.

An added income of $93,660 a year is enjoyed by Pickaway County farmers indirectly as a result of keeping cows, according to the Larowe Institute of Animal Economics. This income is in the form of a more fertile soil due to the manure of the dairy cows in this county. On the basis of practically a $20.00 fertilizer valuation per animal per year, this means a total of $93,660 added to the richness of the soil in this county every twelve-month.

Manure is a source of the most valuable plant food obtainable, says the Institute, but to preserve it at its highest value or efficiency, it should either be put directly to the field each day or conserved until such a time as the opportunity offers itself to spread it. Feeding trials have proven that an ordinary cow, while putting from 15 to 18 per cent of the total energy of the feed she consumes into milk, actually returns to the soil 80 per cent of the elements of soil fertility in her feed in the form of manure. This has led many dairymen to discover that the purchase of good concentrate feeds for their cows not only more than pays for itself in increased milk production but that it also supplies necessary food to farm crops that are expensive when bought in the form of commercial fertilizer.

FARMERS WANT SEED PROTECTION

Ohio farmers are taking considerable interest in legislative proposals being considered at Washington for control of the importation of foreign clover and alfalfa seeds. At the recent annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation a general resolution asking protection against seeds imported from foreign lands and not adapted to use in the northern sections of the United States was adopted. The following day, upon advice from Washington, directors of the federation passed another resolution asking support from Ohio legislators for the Ketchum Bill. This bill provides for the staining of imported seed so that it can be detected in blended mixtures.

Experiments conducted in Ohio show that large quantities of seed which is unadapted to the climate of this section are sold here every year, and that losses sustained by Ohio farmers run into thousands of dollars.

FATAL HOTEL FIRE

Monticello, N. Y., Feb. 22.—(UP.)—Fire which today completely destroyed Shindler's Prairie House at Hurleyville, seven miles from here, caused the death of nine who were burned before help could arrive, it was believed this afternoon.

THE METHODS OF BUSINESS ARE CHANGING

L. E. Hooker Made Interesting Address at Chamber of Commerce Tuesday.

The chamber of commerce listened to a very instructive talk on "Better Business Methods" Tuesday evening by L. E. Hooker, of Detroit, Michigan state manager of the Burroughs Adding Machine company, R. V. Higgs, of Chillicothe, representative for the same company in this district, accompanied Mr. Hooker.

The speaker told of the tremendous advances made in industries in this country in the past twenty years. Such men as Hill, Harriman, Gould, Morgan and Rockefeller were true pioneers, but we have reached the last frontier.

Scientific development of business is now our lot and exploitation has ceased. We must now conserve. The pioneers destroyed buffalo and other big game ruthlessly, they thought it was inexhaustible. It was so with our forests and fuel, such as coal and oil, but these supplies are growing smaller daily. We must conserve.

Out of every ton of coal mined and coked in the beehive coke oven, only 76 pounds is actually saved. Ten thousand feet of gas beside a considerable amount of commercial ammonia and valuable tar, which was not considered has been wasted. Since 1919 these by-products, to a great degree, are now being saved by improved methods, but in great many instances there is still much waste. Beehive coke ovens are still under operation in some districts, near coal mines.

Director of Commerce Hoover has repeatedly sent out warnings to conserve our resources. Distribution and organization are the stepping stones to success, the ratio of production to distribution used to be 70 to 30 percent. This has changed from 33 1-3 in production to 66 2-3. The cost of distribution is too high.

Merchants speak of a gross profit in business but there is no such thing. When you count your overhead, depreciation in stock, credits and other expenses, the average profit dwindles to one and a half per cent. I have often heard merchants say they endeavor to obtain a profit of 33 1-3 per cent, on the cost price. Out of a dozen articles how many are left on hand, which later become unseasonable or shelfworn, and must be sold at cost or less than cost? Does he make 33 1-3 per cent? It's the turnover that counts. Some druggists in business forty years carry some stock they purchased the day they started.

The day has gone by for doing business in a haphazard manner. Departmentize your business, no matter how small the credit system, ignorance of your clerks in knowing the goods they sell and the bogie of competition are the bugbears of business. There is no such thing as competition. Merchants in this sized town should cooperate. If you haven't a credit bureau start one at once and protect yourselves.

The great chain stores have come to stay, simply because they are making money. They buy in large quantities and do a cash business. Their turnovers and discounts are enormous. Overhead is kept down to a minimum and their method of doing business can be studied to advantage by every independent merchant. These chain stores do not buy merchandise but they ever so cheap, if they do not need it. True, they buy articles in quantities and sometimes get stuck, but they make it move at a price even at a loss. It behooves the small merchant to be on his guard and his only salvation is to do a cash business, have quick turnovers. Departmentize your stock have monthly inventories. Systemize your business and get rid of deadwood be it stock or clerks.

Authors Seek Protection

It appears that the one country in Europe that lies outside the pale of copyright is Yugo-Slavia. Not only is the foreign author or newspaper not protected, but in the country literary or journalistic work is not recognized as property. An end is to be put to this state of things by a proposed authors' protection bill.

SPOUTS RICHES FOR TEXAS "U"

Oil Piling Up Income as New Wells Are Brought In.

Austin, Tex.—The "oilman's graveyard" is being turned into wealth for the University of Texas. And it's coming so fast the university may acquire more royalty money than it can spend in the immediate future.

At any rate it can't be spent until the legality of the legislative enactment turning the revenue into the available fund from the permanent fund, as provided by the constitution, is determined. And the attorney general of the state has repeatedly ruled it was illegal.

But whether it happens one way or another, there will shortly be such a fund that interest therefrom, which does go to the available fund, will more than carry on the most ambitious building program ever launched by any university. In fact, prospects today point to the University of Texas as one of the richest, if not the richest, school in the world.

It is as if the university, like an impoverished urchin, had come to the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, which in this instance happened to be in university land in Reagan county, Texas. There on May 28, 1923, a rank wildcat well spouted oil. With that there was born the greatest potential oil field in the United States simultaneously with the greatest university in the same vast territory.

In Midst of Big Holdings.

For that well, known as the Santa Rita, belonged to the Texan Oil and Land company and was in the midst of 64 sections on university land, only a small fraction of university holdings. 2,080,000 acres in west Texas counties. And that lonesome wildcat, in a territory which had already known 54 deep dry holes before it was started, was the forerunner of a drilling campaign destined to test out the thousands of acres of university holdings, and which, in fact, has already discovered another mineral resource, potash, with indications that it may be far more valuable than the oil, which is pouring a stream of gold into the coffers of the educational institution.

But only recently has the significance of oil on university land dawned on the patrons of the school, which in attendance compares with some of the larger institutions of higher learning but which, in the terms of Gov. Miriam Ferguson, is an "eyesore" to the people of the state. Plain frame buildings, unpainted, 20 of them, grace the university campus, poor setting, indeed, for the gaining of an education and sufficient only to draw the obprobrious comment of a woman executive.

Checks approximating $100,000 a month, tendered the first of each month for the one preceding, coming from a field whose production is on a gradual rise, and that, too, from an area confined to about three sections, serve to indicate the magnitude of potentialities as affecting Texas' state school. And with 24 producers already, development has only just begun.

The Texan Oil and Land company, discoverer of the field, and its subsidiaries, together with the Big Lake Oil and Land company, have recently announced a drilling program destined to put 32 new wells in the proven area, in addition to a score more now drilling and destined to be producers shortly.

Output on Increase.

Twin producers for the field recently have been brought in twice in a single day and output has been on the jump since the first of the year. For a long time it stood steadily at around 10,000 barrels. Then came a pipe line and contracts for the delivery of more than 500,000 barrels of oil to one of the major companies by freight. From then on it has been one continual jump after another until today production aggregates more than 40,000 barrels.

One-eighth royalty at prevailing prices means that from henceforth until the peak is attained, the university's part of the oil revenue will be greater than $100,000 a month, possibly $200,000 or more, and that multiplied by twelve means more than $1,000,000 a year. Even should that go to the permanent fund, which would permit only of expenditure of interest in school overhead, as required by a building program, the old campus at Austin is due for a change. At once there is a prospect of a great state-supported school being independent of legislative appropriations and free of the usual fight most such schools must wage before the legislatures to get funds required.

A comparatively poor school, like some comparatively poor people, suddenly grown wealthy, the university has opportunity to spend its money with lavish abandon or to bide its time. This question may get in the courts, but it will only be a friendly action to determine the legality of expending the money at once. This test will come as the result of the legislature taking action turning royalty revenues from the permanent to the available fund. Giving sanction to this measure, after the attorney general had advised its illegality, Mrs. Ferguson cited an unkept campus as being an "eyesore," in which the state could take no pride, and gave her approval anyway.

WASHINGTON PROGRAM AT U. B. CHURCH

Delightful Evening at Community House "Patriotic Mother Goose" Playlet.

Over seventy persons, both little and big heartily enjoyed the George Washington program at the U. B. Community house, Monday evening. The occasion was the monthly business and social session of the C. E. societies. Miss Eleanor Pierce, junior superintendent, certainly covered herself with glory in the manner in which the delightful program was arranged and carried out. Mr. Harry Kraft, president, and Rev. Hiles, gave excellent talks on the life of Washington, which were very much enjoyed by the young people. There was a beautiful violin solo by Howard Greeno, a piano solo by Lucile Kirkwood, which was well rendered and sayings of Washington, given by the intermediates. The crowning feature of the evening was the pretty little playlet by the juniors in costume, "Patriotic Mother Goose." Jack and Jill, Old Mother Hubbard, Little Boy Blue, Contrary Mary, Bo Peep, Little Miss Muffet, Old King Cole, Simple Simon, Tommy Tucker, Jackie Horner, all the children's favorites were there in real life with a bit of praise for Washington. They also gave a pretty little drill and song. A social hour followed during which there was music and dainty refreshments of tiny buckets of ice cream, cakes and coffee.

Under a new order all temporary visitors to the United States will be relieved of the necessity of going to Ellis Island for examination with ordinary immigrants.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE?

"A very difficult question," the President calls the traffic casualties of the time. The figures that he cites—24,000 persons killed in a year upon the streets and highways of the country, and probably more than 500,000 injured. This means that over a period of the same length as our participation in the world war Americans are losing three-fourths as many lives on streets and roads as they lost to German bullets, and running up in addition a non-fatal casualty list thrice as great as they did abroad.

"The president has asked all the governors to appoint delegates to a national safety convention to assemble in March. While we know of no formula to meet the situation he has outlined the conference may write history by focusing public attention on the national aspects of a problem made up of a multitude of incidents at street corners and cross roads. Many communities are at work seeking and applying remedies.

The figures set forth in this article certainly ought to be a very convincing argument for

GOVERNMENT COST LOWER UNDER G.O.P.

DONAHEY BUILDING AN ALIBI STATEMENT OF C. C. CRABBE

Refutes the Charge Made By the Governor That the Threatened State Treasury Deficit Is Due to a Legislative Trick--Donahey's Administration Cost One Million More Than That of Governor Davis.

Charging Governor Donahey with "attempting to establish an alibi," Attorney General Crabbe in a statement Tuesday, refuted the charge by Governor Donahey that the threatened state treasury deficit is due to a "legislative trick."

Cost of state government is $1,150,000 more a year under Governor Donahey than it was under Governor Davis, when higher prices prevailed, he declared. The reply was to charges made by Governor Donahey before the Cuyahoga club, Cleveland, Saturday night.

Attorney General Crabbe's comparison of the cost of government was for the last fiscal year of Governor Davis' administration, ended June 30, 1922, when the cost was $27,928,112 and the most recent year of Governor Donahey's administration ended June 30, 1925, when the cost was $29,081,733, "the largest ever expended by the administration departments."

To answer charges of Governor Donahey "one need only refer to the facts and figures. However, there is evidently a reason for attempting to establish an alibi this early in the campaign. Alibis in both criminal and civil problems should be scrutinized closely," Mr. Crabbe said.

"The governor complains in this Cleveland address that the legislature back in January, 1923, repealed all state levies which included the educational and institutional building funds and the state tax levies. It must be remembered that the institutional and educational building fund was provided by a temporary measure and for the sole purpose of erecting new buildings due to the fact that the building program had been abandoned during and for some time after the war.

"Both political parties promised during the campaign to repeal these levies. The Republican legislature went a step further and repealed the highway levy, thus saving the property owners $11,000,000 each two years, but made ample provision for sufficient funds to enable the present highway department to spend more money than any previous administration.

"The governor will not admit that there will be a deficit but says if there is a deficit it is due to a 'legislative trick.' It should be borne in mind that the legislature does not spend the money it appropriates, and it is a comparison of the expenditures that tells the real story.

"The total expenditures of the administrative departments under the control of the governor during the last fiscal year of Governor Davis was $27,928,112 and during the last year of Governor Donahey it amounted to $29,081,733, being the largest ever expended by the administrative departments.

the gasoline tax bill over the governor's veto, there would have been an increased deficit of over $10,000,000 during the present biennium. Had not the last legislature come to the rescue of the present Democratic administration and provided it with at least $10,000,000 a year from the gasoline tax, the state of Ohio would be completely bankrupt and we would have been forced to resort to a state levy or issue bonds to meet operating expenses."

ALLIANCE BROADCASTING.

This may be a familiar announcement to radio fans if the chamber of commerce is successful in its quest. Formal invitation to locate its proposed new broadcasting station in Alliance has been extended to the Westinghouse company at east Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The plan to locate KDKA at Mansfield has apparently fallen thru and Alliance is the nearest city in the field for the station.

Atmospheric conditions in east Pittsburgh, said to have scrambled the KDKA wave length, are said to have prompted the company to seek a new site.

PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER DIED IN COLUMBUS

Dr. William M. Hindman Succumbed to Heart Trouble —Ill for Some Time.

Dr. William M. Hindman, pastor emeritus of Northminster Presbyterian church, Columbus, died suddenly Monday night at his late residence, 1309 Neil avenue of angina pectoris. He was found dead in bed Tuesday morning, having slept away during the night.

For a number of years Dr. Hindman had been in ill health and it was for this reason he was compelled to give up his active pastorate at Northminster church after having served the congregation about 11 years. He had been pastor emeritus for the past two years.

Dr. Hindman would have been 66 years of age on March 20. He is survived by his wife and five sons, two of whom are ministers of the Presbyterian denomination, Rev. Ralph Hindman, at Danville, Illinois, and Rev. William Hindman at Arora, Illinois. The other sons are Richard, with the city engineering department, Columbus; Hugh, with the auditor's office, in Toledo and Charles of New York City. He also leaves two sisters and three brothers.

Mary, wife of Rev. C. Boyd Beckes, formerly minister of the Presbyterian church in this city, is a sister of the deceased.

Dr. Hindman came to Columbus from Chillicothe, and had served as pastor of the Presbyterian church in Lincoln, Nebraska, of which the late William Jennings Bryan was a member. He also had at one time served Normal Park Presbyterian church, in Chicago.

The illness which resulted in his death was due to partial asphyxiation suffered several years ago when he was overcome by carbon monoxide gas from a furnace at his home. He had been confined to his bed for two weeks prior to his death.

Funeral services will be held in Northminster Presbyterian church, King and Forsythe avenue. Interment will be in Green Lawn cemetery.

SALE AT CORNING.

C. G. Chalfin and son, Jack, motored to Corning Monday morning where he cried a sale at the U. B. church. The sale was largely attended and nearly everything brought good prices. Automobiles, radios, livestock, farm implements, etc., were in the sale.

Those in charge of the sale were so well pleased with Mr. Chalfin's work that they gave him a substantial bonus in appreciation of the good results obtained.

A GOOD SALE.

The public sale of Marcus Owens, Tuesday, February 23, was well attended. The property offered brought high prices. Cows sold for $114, brood sow and pigs $84 and other property accordingly.

The ladies of the Union church served dinner and were well patronized.

C. G. Chalfin was the auctioneer and Harvey Winn was clerk.

RIPE OLD AGE

Levi Hays Dies of Heart Trouble at County Home--Burial in Williamsport.

Levi Hays died at the County Home Monday evening at 10 o'clock. His death was due to heart trouble.

The deceased was a farmer by occupation and he was born in this county, October 11, 1840. He was a son of Norris and Sallie Hurst Hays. He was thrice married and was the father of ten children. The surviving children are: Bruce Hays, of Minneapolis, Minnesota; Misses Mame and Sadie Hays, of Columbus; Mrs. Jennie Caldwell, of Dayton; Thomas Hays, of Chicago, Illinois and Cecil Hays, of Oxford, Indiana.

The funeral services will be held at C. E. Hill's Undertaking Home in Williamsport Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. W. W. Trout will officiate. Interment in Springlawn cemetery. The deceased was the last of his family.

CANDIDATE FOR SENATORSHIP AT STOUTSVILLE

C. E. Wharton Made a Most Favorable Impression at the Farmer's Institute.

C. Wharton, of Kenton, Democratic candidate for the United States senatorship in Ohio, was one of speakers at the Pickaway-Fairfield County Farmers' institute held at Stoutsville and after listening to his address, Mrs. S. E. Cullumber wrote the following letter to Margaret I. Wilson, secretary of the federated clubs of Ohio:

"As my husband is vice president of the joint Farmers' institute of Pickaway and Fairfield counties, and as your candidate for United States senator on the Democratic ticket, Mr. C. E. Wharton, of Kenton, Ohio, was the speaker on our regular program for afternoon and evening of the 22d, I wish to make a report of the same to you.

"We also had two other speakers for that day, one from West Virginia, and another from eastern Ohio, and I wish to state that I consider myself a pretty good Republican, but toward the end of Mr. Wharton's unanswerable speech of wit, logic and facts, I felt myself slipping as far as his candidacy for senator was concerned, and at the end of his speech it was completely shattered.

"While our large hall was completely filled as was also the foyer, at the conclusion of the speech it was plain to be seen that Mr. Wharton had completely captured our institute, as remarks on all sides were heard; 'the best speech I ever heard,' 'nothing like it ever in Stoutsville,' 'the most illuminating speech ever,' 'We are with you,' 'give us more.'

"The other two speakers were completely 'flabbergasted' and could not answer a single one of his arguments, and at the evening session, after the audience had completely filled the hall, the chairman announced that those who desired to hear Mr. Wharton speak would have to go upstairs to another hall, and those who desired to hear the other two speakers should remain in their seats.

"At this announcement, with the exception of a baker's dozen, all arose and proceeded upstairs to hear Mr. Wharton, and as the regular chairman did stay down to console the other two speakers who had a pout on them, and one of the leading ministers of our town volunteered for the occasion, Rev. L. E. Hill, of the Evangelical church, acted as chairman of the meeting.

Mr. Wharton poured another volley of information into his audience which filled the hall, aisles and standing room.

"At the end of his speech, it was plain to be seen that by the ovation he received that he had so completely endeared himself into the hearts of our people that I am quite sure that he will get every Democratic vote in this section on primary day, and I shall proceed at once to organize a Women's Wharton for Senator Republican club to boost for him on primary and election day."

of hostesses, and were presented with booklets listing the cost of each article of furniture and furnishings in each room, together with a suggested budget for the sort of family which would occupy a house of this type.

The city government, the churches, the schools, and, in fact, every organization of a civic, commercial, or industrial character endorsed and co-operated in the campaign.

The Better Homes movement has the endorsement and co-operation of men and women of national reputation. Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, is president of Better Homes in America. Another cabinet member, Dr. Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior, is a member of the advisory council. Dr. Work, speaking of the movement, said:

"The home is the sanctified center from which civilization evolved, and efforts toward its upbuilding are bound to produce a better people and a better America."

Mrs. A. H. Reeve, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, whose picture is shown above, is also a member of the advisory council.

ATLANTA divided with Santa Barbara, Calif., the highest award in the 1925 Better Homes in America campaign. This year 2,000 American communities, large and small, took part in this educational work, every state being well represented.

Atlanta demonstrated three homes, the picture illustrating "Home No. 1." It is a six-room house, the plan for which was secured from the Architects' Small House Service Bureau, slight changes being made to adapt the house particularly to Atlanta conditions. It was built for $6,750. The lot cost $1,000. It is thus within the reach of the family with an income of from $3,500 to $4,500 a year.

The kitchen is particularly well planned. The sink is placed directly below a window, and is equipped with double drain boards. Built-in cupboards on each side of the work table add to the convenience of this room. The house is a model of compactness, with three bedrooms on the second floor, a living room, dining room and kitchen on the first floor, and a large garret which can be fitted up as a play room.

Thousands of visitors were led through the house by a committee

Right Use of Wealth
When wealthy, show thy wisdom not to be to wealth a servant, but to make wealth serve thee.—Sir J. Denham.

CENTRAL AMERICA

Said To Offer Best Solution of the Rubber Problem.

American rubber interests, aroused out of their long sleep by the British embargo, are appropriating millions with which to go afield and provide the United States with home-owned sources of supply. Firestone has crossed the Atlantic to Africa and leased a million acres in Liberia. The Government has surveyed the Philippines and estimates that 70,000 tons of rubber per year can eventually be produced there. Others talk of Sumatra and neighboring far East islands.

The Philippines would be a natural first choice, but a quarter century of American rule has failed to make of them a country productive of anything but political and economic unrest. The native Legislature has effectually prohibited the culture of rubber by American interests by passing land laws which make it illegal for others than Filipinos to own enough land to create a successful plantation.

The chief objection to all these aforementioned proposals, including the Philippines, is that they place the home-owned source far from home.

Still other interests talk of Central America, and their project would seem to us the most logical that has been put forward.

The Central American republics are near by; they are tropical; they offer cheap labor. The United States excludes foreign interference with the Monroe doctrine. Here should be the ideal site for American enterprise to build up a rubber supply.

Trade treaties which would permit the free entrance of United States capital into Central America and of Central American products into the United States would profit both parties to the negotiations. The rubber interests, to our way of looking at it, may wisely investigate Central America before going too far afield.—Chicago Tribune.

Baltimore, Md.—Trailing ignominiously at the end of a towline, a once proud monitor and last of her type recently moved toward her grave—a junk pile at Hampton roads.
One of four sister ships laid down in 1904, the Cheyenne, originally the Wyoming, started her death march alone with the U. S. S. Owl, a navy yard tug, stealing ahead like a conscience-stricken executioner. The Tallahassee, the last of her sisters, felt the acetylene torch 20 years ago.
Sixty-six years back in American history the monitor type, embodied in John Ericsson's Monitor, nemesis of the Merrimac, revolutionized naval practice. Monitors maintained President Lincoln's blockade of southern ports during the Civil war.
The present and last monitor, lying to see her once all-powerful type belittled by modern development, epitomized naval progress when she served as a mother ship for submarines on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts during the World war. The Cheyenne, then the Wyoming, also was the first naval vessel to feel the thrust of modern oil-burning engines. Experiments conducted aboard the Wyoming have since led the Navy department to take steps for the conversion of all remaining coal burners.
For more than five years the Cheyenne has served as the training ship of the Fifth Naval Reserve district and with her passing the Baltimore water front loses a bit of romance. The original Monitor indirectly was protecting this port when it destroyed the Merrimac in Hampton roads.
Under her own power, around the Virginia capes from Philadelphia, the Cheyenne came to Baltimore in October, 1920. It is through no fault of her own that she is dragged away on the end of a chain, like a criminal to the gibbet. Her engines are sturdy and fit, her propeller trim—but she is obsolete and her crew is gone. Part of her crew has been transferred to Eagle boat 56, her successor, and the remainder has gone on the inactive list.
So, with her fireroom cold and her decks deserted, the last of the monitors keeps her rendezvous with Davy Jones.

Blood Reveals Race History, Tests Show

Berlin.—Blood tests to identify descendants of those who crossed the Atlantic in the Mayflower or to expose fake survivors of the Light brigade soon will be possible, if experiments of Dr. E. O. Manoloff, Russian blood specialist, are extended, this scientist claims.
The old adage "blood will tell," is literally true, Doctor Manoloff says. Though his experiments have been limited to Europeans, he asserts that by blood analyses he can tell a Chinese from a Japanese, a German from a Pole. Out of 1,362 Russians and Jews whose ancestry has been traced, Doctor Manoloff said that his tests enabled him to distinguish between the two races with 88 per cent accuracy.
At a clinic attended by five distinguished savants who took samples of blood from 202 persons of various races and nationalities, Doctor Manoloff, without seeing the persons, diagnosed correctly the nationalities and race of 187, an error of only 7.5 per cent. His analyses are based upon color solutions.

"Captain Mollie" to Be Moved to West Point

Albany, N. Y.—J. P. Morgan has given permission for the removal of the remains of Margaret Corbin—"Captain Mollie" of Revolutionary war fame—from the grave of his estate at Highland Falls. They will be reburied in the West Point cemetery in April with ceremonies conducted by the New York state branch of the Daughters of the American Revolution.
"Captain Mollie" did her bit in the battle of Fort Mifflin on upper Manhattan island November 16, 1776. When her husband, a gunner, was struck down by a ball, she took his place and served with great credit until she was wounded by grapeshot which nearly severed her arm and part of her breast.
As a reward for her heroism the supreme council of Philadelphia granted her an award of $30 and got her a pension. Her battle wounds were the ultimate cause of her death.

Educate Chinese With 1,000-Letter Alphabet

Pekingfu, Chihli.—Public-spirited Chinese with sufficient learning to qualify as teachers have undertaken a movement for the education of the masses of China.
"Jimmie" Yen, product of Yale and Princeton, leads the undertaking. He and his associates have selected from the formidable mass of Chinese characters, a thousand common ones with which they assert books and papers on almost any subject can be written.
A million of the "thousand character" text-books have been put in circulation, each costing the equivalent of a dime. Vacant temples or residences have been borrowed for school rooms and the practice of writing in the air with the finger is resorted to where blackboards or slates are not available.

Gold Discoveries

Gold was discovered in Malacca in 1731; in New Andalusia in 1755; in Ceylon in 1800. Gold was discovered in California in September, 1847, and in Australia in 1851. It is estimated that between 1851 and 1859 gold to the value of $450,000,000 was exported from Victoria, Australia, alone.

Egyptians First Surveyors

The art of land surveying owes its origin to the fact that the Egyptians were unable to keep permanent monuments on land which was overflowed every year by the Nile. Under such circumstances it became necessary to have some means of reidentifying the various pieces of land.

Alexander the Corrector

Alexander Cruden, author of the famous concordance of the Holy Scriptures, thought himself to be commissioned by God to reform the morals of England and assumed the title of Alexander the Corrector.

America's First Bank

Probably the first bank on this continent was one established in 1680 for the convenience of the planters of South Carolina. Five or six years later a bank of issue was established in Boston by John Blackwell and his associates.

Author Lost to Fame

The author of the old English ballad, "Babe in the Wood," is unknown. The ballad was entered in the Stationers' register in 1593. The first play by that name, produced in 1601, was derived from the Italian.

We are so accustomed to referring to Satan as the "Old Harry" that no thought is given to the origin of such an expression. "Old Harry" is merely the modern form of "Old Hairy," a name given to the devil because of his supposed hairy appearance.

Mutually Tired

John Paul Ragsdale, Jr., five years old, is a winsome youngster, quite popular with the juvenile colony of Whittier place. Only occasionally does John Paul transgress the laws laid down by his mother, but recently he happened to "get in bad" and it was necessary to administer a lecture or two.

The last one was at the dinner table where John Paul was listening politely to his mother's advice. Finally she said: "Now, John Paul, I am getting mighty tired of giving these lectures, mighty tired."

John Paul promptly replied: "Yes, mother, and I'm mighty tired of being the audience."—Indianapolis News.

Women and Wireless

Many women are finding careers of one kind or another in wireless as entertainers. There are openings as lecturers for women possessed of expert knowledge of matters of particular interest to their sex. The field, however, is somewhat restricted by the fact that women's voices are generally inferior to men's for broadcasting purposes, although, as a broadcasting official pointed out recently, this may be the fault of the microphone, not of women's vocal organs.

Cow Was Mifed

A cow hurtled into the lake at Warton, Ontario, while landing from a small steamer, turned upon the boat and attacked it with such force that it punctured the hull below the water line. The boat was taken to a marine railway, where it was decided that it would be necessary to have repairs made at a drydock.

KEEPING WELL

TYPHOID FEVER

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

TYPHOID fever has been for centuries one of the most dangerous diseases which afflict man. It was long confused with typhus fever and malaria. People still talk occasionally about "typho-malarial fever." As the farmer said about the giraffe, "There ain't no such animal." The two diseases are entirely distinct.

Typhoid fever is caused by a little germ or plant, the typhoid bacillus.

Every typhoid germ comes from the discharges from the kidneys or bowels of someone who has had typhoid. The germs can originate in no other way. So typhoid fever is very appropriately called a "filth" disease.

How do the germs enter the body? In dirty milk or dirty water or through food contaminated by flies or by dirty hands.

The germs always get into the body through the mouth. After being swallowed, they pass through the stomach into the small intestine where they grow just as plants grow in a hothouse.

The germs in growing produce a poison or toxin, which causes fever, delirium and, in severe cases, death. Man is the only animal susceptible to this disease.

We know all about typhoid fever. It is entirely preventable.

Every case of typhoid fever is due to someone's ignorance or carelessness. One health authority has said "For every case of typhoid someone should be hanged."

How can we prevent it?

By using only pure water. Drink no water from surface wells where seepage or drainage from outhouses or cesspools is possible.

Practically all our large cities now supply pure water so typhoid fever, today, is largely a rural disease.

If you are not sure your water is pure, boil it for twenty minutes and then cool it.

By using pure milk. Protect the milk from dirty water. Sterilize all cans or buckets by steaming or boiling.

If in doubt, pasteurize the milk by heating it for twenty minutes to 145 degrees F.

By protecting food of all kinds from flies, which carry the typhoid germs on their feet. This was proved at Camp Chickamauga during the Spanish-American war.

By protecting food from contamination by dirty hands. Wash your hands before eating. See that all those who handle your food have clean hands. If everything which goes into your mouth is clean, you will never have typhoid fever.

Estelle Acquires Perfect Form

Running Several Blocks Daily, Plus Diet and Exercise, Does Trick

ESTELLE CLARK, one of the charming newcomers of the screen, who plays a feature role in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Merry Widow," in which the charming Mae Murray stars, has lost something she hopes never to find again. In fact, she runs several blocks daily to keep away from it. But she has also found something she hopes never to lose again too!—a perfect form!

It is a little matter of fifteen pounds that Estelle lost in three weeks, and she declares she was not hungry once, and gets along beautifully without the surplus avoidupids.

Her method was simple, and at no time stringent.

She went on a diet of fruit and vegetables, avoiding especially starchy foods, such as potatoes and bread, and eating peaches, melons, grapes, carrots and salads without an abundance of rich dressing.

In addition, she exercised strenuously to music for ten minutes each day, doing bending exercises and dance steps, high kicking and the split. Along with this she ran several blocks each day.

Estelle dedicates her method to all suffering fat womankind gratis. Give one look at Estelle's legs, girls, and in the words of the Bible, "Go thou and do likewise!"

The Effect of Good Dressing

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN appeared at the French court dressed like an ordinary farmer. The treaty of alliance between the united colonies and France was signed against a most sumptuous background of gorgeously dressed courtiers in satin breeches, gold-braided coats, buckled slippers and powdered wigs. The king was there in all his regal splendor. The assembly room was bedecked with the most lavish brilliance of the period.

And in the midst of all this splendor stood the American envoy in his faded old brown suit and holding a shabby, fur cap in his hands. This incongruous appearance was taken, both at home and abroad, as being representative of American simplicity and democracy but nothing could be further from the facts. Franklin had, it was afterward learned, ordered a suitable court costume from his tailor, one that would enable him to take his place with satisfaction among the diplomats and nobles of Europe. But the costume was not finished in time.

The effect of proper dressing is just as great upon a man as it is with women. It gives him a self-confidence and self-esteem that is not gained in any other way. The very fact that some men tend to be careless and negligent about their clothes gives an added asset to the man who does know what to wear and takes to wear it.

The American citizen of today demands a higher standard of tailoring and appearance than ever before. Each year has brought an increased consciousness among men. Starting with a well-tailored, custom-made suit, the 1925 man selects shoes and socks a few shades darker, a hat that will tone with but not match the suit and a tie that affords a pleasing but not pronounced contrast. He looks well, he knows it and is in keeping with the slogan, "dressed to succeed."

Best Out of 9,903,540 Cows

When Mollie, owned by James E. Larrowe of Detroit, Mich., was chosen as champion grade Holstein cow at the National Dairy Show at Indianapolis, she automatically became the best out of 9,903,540 Holstein grade cows in America. Mollie, who is five years old, is the granddaughter of Cedar Lawn Canary Paul who won the championship at the National Dairy Show in 1920, and whose head, neck, crest and rump were chosen by the Holstein Breisian association as typical of the True Holstein bull. In the 3rd year she was in milk last year, she produced 12,904 pounds of milk and 571.9 pounds of butterfat. She is now on the Larrowe Farm at Detroit.

GENERAL SHERWOOD LOVER OF HORSES

The horse lost a good friend when Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood died recently, says the New York Herald Tribune. The standard-bred, or trotting horse, had the warmest place in the affections of the late congressman from Ohio, though he was fond of a good horse of any sort, and for many years he drove one of the best pairs to be seen on the streets of Washington. He could drive with rare skill, and those with a love for a nice team, well turned out, never failed to stop and follow with an admiring eye Gen.

eral Sherwood and his horses as they passed through the streets of the capital. Though past eighty years, he never lost an opportunity thus to take the air.

The horse has done much for many men in public life in their declining years. That hackneyed phrase about nothing being so good for the inside of a man as the outside of a horse, holds good with as much force today as when it was first uttered.

Turkeys move right along. Her Nationalist government has decreed the introduction of our Roman alphabet to displace the cumbersome and inadequate Arabic.

EASTERN STAR DELIGHTFULLY ENTERTAINED

Splendid Program of Music, Readings and a Snappy, Homorous Playlet.

A most delightful evening was spent in the Masonic temple by the members of the Order of the Eastern Star and their guests, a total of at least 125.

After the meeting a social session was held which was thoroly enjoyed by all. There were piano duets by Misses Catherine Morris and Aubrey Wickenseimer, vocal solos by Misses Margaret Knox and Ruth Thompson, a quartet; Mrs. Walter Tedrick, Miss Estella Grimes, Mrs. Christian Schwarz and Mrs. Ray Reid, gave two numbers and Mrs. Ralph Long gave readings.

Deserving of special mention was the snappy playlet, "Mrs. Sullivan in Politics." In the cast were Miss Lucile Reynolds, Mrs. Lawrence J. Johnson, Miss Marie Hamilton, Mrs. Earl Hilyard, Mrs. A. J. Lyle, Mrs. Harry W. Moore, Mrs. Harry T. McMahon and little daughter, Edna.

Refreshments were served. Among the visitors were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Knox, Miss Ruth Thompson, Miss Margaret Knox and Mrs. Charles Rogers of Columbus, and Miss Orr, of Kingstons.

FIND FOOTPRINTS 25 MILLION YEARS OLD

Marks Made by Animals Long Since Extinct.

Washington.—Footprints made in the sand approximately twenty-five million years ago by animals long since extinct have been discovered in the Grand canyon of the Colorado river. They have been preserved indelibly in the record of the rocks, in this instance the Coconino sandstone of Arizona.

Dr. Charles W. Gilmore, the paleontologist who uncovered many of these ancient tracks, has brought specimens of them to Washington. He describes the unique exhibit for the first time in a bulletin of the Smithsonian institution.

Hard to Grasp.

The human mind, according to Doctor Gilmore, can scarcely grasp the idea of the vast age of animal life on the earth that is presented by these strange footprints. Some tracks of extinct quadrupeds were first discovered in the Grand canyon in 1915 by Prof. Charles Schuchert. In 1924 Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie institution of Washington conceived the idea of having a permanent exhibit of the footprints in place, just as they were found, so that the tourist that visits the Grand canyon may see them.

Such an exhibit has been prepared on the Hermit trail by Doctor Gilmore, in addition to the specimens brought to Washington. The tracks include those of new and unknown species that lived in the wet sand of this region when the earth was much younger. The Smithsonian institution hopes later to do similar work in other localities and to take steps to preserve such natural phenomena.

"The great antiquity of these footprints, which occur from 900 to 1,080 feet below the level of the present rim of the canyon," says Doctor Gilmore, "is clearly demonstrated at this locality.

Beyond Comprehension.

It is obvious that since the day when those animals impressed their feet in what at that time was moist sand, more than 1,000 feet of rock-making materials were piled up in successive strata above them, and this does not take into account many hundreds of feet more that have been eroded off from the present top of the canyon wall.

"The great length of time required for the cutting away or erosion of the rock to form the deep canyon, and the even longer time necessary for the original deposition of this great mass of stone is, when translated in terms of years, if that were possible, so stupendous as to be almost beyond human comprehension.

"It is hoped that the object lesson so graphically taught by this unique exhibit may serve as an example to stimulate the preparation and preservation of other natural phenomena to be found in our government controlled parks, monuments and reservations."

Radio Heat for Homes Next Step for Science

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The broadcasting of heat by radio is only a matter of years, in the opinion of Prof. S. E. Dibble of Carnegie Institute of Technology, who, it became known, is making a study of the problem.

Mr. Dibble, president of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, and holder of the Ahgans professorship in plumbing, heating and ventilating, believes "it is no more improbable to broadcast heat waves than it was to broadcast sound waves."

Sending heat to consumers via the air is now the problem of research men and laboratory workers, who must "discover instruments to control heat waves, especially a detector which will pick them up and hold and amplify them," says Professor Dibble.

Transmission of heat by atmospheric conductivity is essential because of the gradual exhaustion of the elements of fuel, said the professor, adding, "The day is not far off, in my opinion, when we will see huge centralized heating plants broadcasting heat to homes, industries and office buildings."

Plans to Blow Coal From Mines to Mills

Pittsburg, Kan.—Coal, pulverized at the mines here and blown to Kansas City through pipe lines for fuel for steel mills and other industrial purposes, is the prediction made by Ira Clemens, one of the leading coal operators of this field.

Clemens estimates that from the unclaimed coal lands in this district there is sufficient to produce 400,000 tons annually, which will last for more than half a century. He also has visions of gas plants built to generate gas from the coal and by a redistilling process make gasoline from it. Coal hauled by trucks from here to the nearby large cities will be seen in a few years, he states, and predicts a bright future for the Kansas coal industry, which this winter is enjoying unusual prosperity.

Blinded by Hawk

Canby, Ore.—After shooting a large hawk T. P. Lee stooped over the bird to pick it up. The hawk, still alive thrust his bill into one of the man's eyes. Doctors said Lee would lose the sight of both eyes.

x HARTMAN THEATER. x
x x x x x

The biggest thrill of many seasons in the American theater was provided late in the summer of 1924 when "What Price Glory" burst on Broadway with a report which has echoed across the continent. "What Price Glory" is the only play about the war of which men who have been in the thick of it say: "This is it!" "What Price Glory" comes to the Hartman theater, Columbus, for one week beginning Monday February 22, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

This picture of the war is revealed almost unconsciously by its authors. Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson never planned to make history with their play. Their modest intent was to tell the story—a grinning comedy, in truth—of a battle between two hardboiled Marines for the favors of a peasant girl in a shell-torn corner of France.

But so alive, throbbing and hard-fisted are those characters, so vivid are the scenes, that those who have yearned to know how the war looked and felt and tasted come away from "What Price Glory" with the conviction that they now know something of the war as these men know it. Gargantuan figures they are, Flagg and Quirt. Beasts, men and gods—something of each. To know them is to see life magnified, made more beautiful, more horrible, more devilish and more divine than we, in our cramped lives, can hope to live it.

Captain Flagg and Sergeant Quirt, as impersonated by Louis Wolheim and William Boyd, are unforgettable. Indeed the whole company of Marines, French peasants, staff officers and camp followers is so perfectly cast that the play offers a cross section of the French front seen thru the eyes of a laughter-loving American.

"What Price Glory" was born of the experiences of Laurence Stallings on the battle fields of France. Its characters and incidents are lifted from life. Veterans of the Marine corps visit the play again and again to greet with cheers of laughter and reminiscent chuckles the whole string of characters and incidents of the story.

To the men who were over there, "What Price Glory" will recall the most acute moments of their lives. To the millions of others it has the incalculable value of satisfying a hunger to know what the World war really meant. Here it is—the grinning, brutal, heroic truth.

See it! Then—you'll know.

Among Those Present
By RUBY DOUGLAS
(Copyright.)

HE HAD been on that proverbial, if somewhat exaggerated, jaunt up and down the world, looking for her. And now, idly scanning the list of guests at a party given in honor of a famous film star, he found her name—Dawn Morrow. It must be she; there could be but one Dawn Morrow.

He recalled, now, as vividly as if it had been yesterday, his first glimpse of her. She must have been about fourteen and she had come out on the putting green to give her father a message that had been telephoned to the club from his office. He, Donald Harper, had been her father's carrier.

After that he often caddied for her. She was learning golf that summer and it had been his last season on the links—he thought boys over seventeen who couldn't do better than caddy to help out with their approaching college expenses were not much good. And thus, Dawn Morrow had passed out of his life. She did not even know his name. She always called him "Caddie."

Now, having taken his bar examinations and having been taken into a large law office to serve his apprenticeship at his profession, he still wondered where the lovely little girl was and never until today had he seen or heard of her. And now, it was only in a list of "Among Those Present" at a big party.

He continued to search for her on the street, in the theater. He scanned newspapers and magazines for her name.

One day it occurred to him to hunt up a friend who he knew was a member of the golf club at which he had first seen Dawn. It was just possible, he conjectured, that her father was still a member and that he had continued his game of golf.

It did not take him long to get in touch with Elliott Gordon and get himself invited to the Country club on a Saturday afternoon in October when anyone who played golf would be sure to be out. He did not explain to his friend his reason for wanting to be his guest but merely said that he had once caddied out on that course and had a fancy to have a go at the game, now, as a full-fledged player.

Out on the links, every hole and every hazard of which he knew like a map, he felt a thrill of enthusiasm for life that he had not experienced for years. He had studied pretty hard at college, majored in law his senior year and worked to pay expenses during the summers. Now, to play, to feel himself firmly planted on the road to success in his chosen profession and—to have the hope that just across any bunker he might see the face of the girl he had held in his vision for so long—this was joy indeed!

His game was nothing to brag about and his friend twitted him not a little.

But there was a tang in the air that made even the poorest golfer enjoy his game and the two finished the eighteen holes just as a great red sunset was being staged over the western hills adjoining the club.

"Nothing beats a royally red sunset in the country," remarked Elliott.

"Nothing but a glorious Dawn," murmured Donald, lost in the vision of a girl's face.

"Speaking of Dawn—do you know Dawn Morrow, the artist?" asked Elliott. "Don't look now—she's over at that corner table."

Donald nearly cramped his muscles to keep from turning at once to gaze upon the girl. "Is she alone?" he asked, stupidly, for want of poise in which to seek an intelligent question.

"No—she's with her dad, John Morrow. Great old golfer, that boy," remarked Elliott, smiling.

Donald had half turned so that he might behold the face he so longed to see. How lovely she was! How more than lovely she had grown!

"Hello, Gordon, how's the game?" called out Mr. Morrow as he caught sight of Elliott.

"Come over," said Elliott to his friend, as he stepped forward to greet the Morrows.

"I've often caddied for you, Mr Morrow," Donald found himself saying.

"Oh—I thought I knew you—Caddie," laughed Dawn, giving him her warm little hand and beaming on him as if he had been a long-lost relative.

The use of the old name made Donald's heart beat even more furiously, and while the two golfers discussed their game, he and Dawn became acquainted again—this time as man and woman.

It is not necessary for anyone to have to say that the two were lost in each other, that they went over the years they had been separated only to find that they had had a mutual longing for a renewal of what they now admitted was their first romance.

HOME CARE OF THE SICK FOLK BEING TAUGHT

Trained Specialist Met With Leaders From All Old School Districts.

Wednesday, February 17, Miss Wanda Przyluska met with twenty farm women, representing thirteen townships for the first days work in "Home Care of the Sick."

Miss Przyluska is the health specialist in home economics, Ohio State university. She is a graduate nurse and a highly trained specialist in this line.

Each township has a leader and assistant leader who attend the meetings at Circleville. Every old school district has a local leader and an assistant. The township leaders meet with the school district leaders to give them the work. The district leaders meet with the women in the district and pass the work on to them.

The township leaders and assistant leaders are: Mrs. D. C. Heffner and Mrs. S. Croman, Washington; Mrs. James Swearingen and Mrs. George Shook, Jackson; Mrs. E. C. Rector and Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Deer creek; Mrs. C. M. Beatty and Mrs. Dan VanVickle, Scioto; Mrs. Cora Rader Hood and Mrs. Alva Dyer, Pickaway; Mrs. Turney Glick and Mrs. John Walters, Circleville; Mrs. C. D. Rector, Wayne; Mrs. J. N. McKinley and Mrs. T. E. Ginder, Muhlenberg; Mrs. Guy Heffner and Mrs. Thomas Hockman, Salt creek; Mrs. C. E. Dick, Monroe; Mrs. Walter Berger, Harrison; Mrs. Archie Peters, Madison and Mrs. Lenora Wright, Perry.

The first lesson covered bed making giving bath to patient in bed, changing bedding with patient in bed, care and furnishing of sick room.

AMUSEMENTS

The combination of Hobart Henley as the director and Norma Shearer as the star, with Lew Cody, is proving an irresistible one. The trio that made "A Slave of Fashion" have contributed another picture called "His Secretary" at the Met theater. To say that it is a scream is putting it mild, indeed.

Hobart Henley seems to be stepping ahead by leaps and bounds. First a success at directing pictures abounding in human interest like "The Flirt" and "The Gay Old Dog," he then changed his type of story to the ultra-sophisticated ones like "So This Is Marriage," and "His Secretary." He directs with a finesse and surety of touch, as if he were absolutely certain of the effect upon his audience.

Norma Shearer's Best Work
Norma Shearer has never done better work. In the early scenes of "His Secretary," she buries every bit of her natural charm under a makeup of prim stenographer. You have met the character many times yourself, sometimes as a stenographer, sometimes a school teacher, and you just know she would enjoy an afternoon at the "sewing circle." I don't know of another actress who would dare appear to such personal disadvantage as Miss Shearer does in this, and it is sometimes hard to believe that it is the beautiful Norma. When she emerges from her chrysalis, her homeliness in the early scenes only emphasizes her natural beauty.

Lew Cody is now firmly entrenched in the comedy field. He is a much greater comedian than he ever has been as a "heavy," and if you don't believe it, visit the Met theater this week. His years as the suave villain have fitted him, however, for the playing of subtle comedy.

River Leaves Much Silt
Farmers in the Imperial valley of California pay nearly $1,000,000 a year for dredging out of irrigation systems the silt deposited by the Colorado river. Engineers have estimated the Colorado river carries past Yuma 100,000 tons of silt annually, and that an average of 185,000 cubic yards of it goes into the Imperial valley district every month.

LOANS up to $500

Adding in the carrying charge as part of the cost when you buy a thing "on time" is good practice in one sense, but doubtful in another. It enables a great many people to buy things that otherwise they could never afford to own. It also increases business production and in that manner improves the general prosperity of the country. But from the standpoint of the individual buyer, it makes a doubtful bargain, because all the "ifs" are in favor of the seller. If you pay too fast, you pay too much interest. If you pay too slowly, all you have previously paid may be sacrificed and you risk losing what you bought besides.

Under the popular City Loan Plan you can borrow the cash to buy what you want, and pay the carrying charge—not in advance, but month to month just as you go.

Ecclesiastical Joke

A new version of an age-old religious joke is ascribed to the French Abbe Wetterle who, in the course of an argument with an anticlericalist deputy, was asked if he believed in heaven and hell, and, if so, in which of them he hoped to spend the hereafter. To this the abbe replied that a straightforward answer was difficult in the premises, because it was sometimes difficult to choose between climate and company.

Cover Crops Lower Temperature SomeTests Show Frost Hazard Is Increased Slightly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture has conducted several experiments in citrus-growing sections of California to determine what influence a cover crop has on the temperature of the orchard atmosphere on a frosty night. Purple vetch, a heavy volunteer crop of Broad Windsor horse beans, and many high weeds were included in the cover crop in these experiments.

The conclusions reached were that while the cover crop increased the frost hazard very slightly, the difference made in the temperature was not such as to damage the fruit seriously. At a height of five feet above the ground, the air temperature was depressed by the presence of the cover crop only 0.1 degree Fahrenheit, and 1 degree Fahrenheit at a height of 10 inches. Since there is usually but little fruit near the ground these slight differences should have little effect on the damage to fruit.

In many cases increased damage is probably due to the fact that the grove is on lower ground, where the temperature is naturally lower. Differences in the amount of damage between clean cultivated groves and those in cover crops may also be attributed to some other influence than temperature, such as decreased vigor of the tree, due to competition from the cover crop, a less dormant condition of the trees caused by more frequent irrigations, or increased deposit of moisture on the fruit or foliage from dew or frost. The cover crop also acts as a windbreak, allowing the cold air to accumulate near the ground, and preventing it from mixing with the warmer air above.

Make Plans for Gardens Before Planting Time

"Plan the farm garden before planting," advises J. G. Moore, of the University of Wisconsin horticulture department.

"Just as the carpenter cannot build a satisfactory house without a plan prepared in advance, so should a farmer not attempt to plant the garden bed before planning for it," declares this authority. "That the garden is to be small is not a good excuse for neglecting to make a plan. It being all the more important to secure maximum returns in such cases. Therefore," Moore points out, "the wise gardener will plan his garden on paper well in advance of planting time."

According to Moore, the plan should show the location of each row, and the crop to be planted—the distance of each row from one end of the garden—and the sequence for the different plantings, when more than one planting is to be made.

"The soil is a prime factor in a successful garden," he says. "One of the first essentials is that the garden plot have good drainage, for vegetables cannot thrive in water-logged soil." If the land is low and marshy, he advises gardening on raised beds.

Texture of the soil is also very important, Moore believes. He defines the ideal garden soil texture as "fine and loose," and to attain these qualities in soils of the lumpy, heavy type, he recommends adding organic material, or lime, and in some cases, applying sand or using coal ashes, where the soil is extremely heavy.

Milking Three Times a Day Produces More Milk

Recent studies completed by the United States Department of Agriculture on the comparative yield of cows milked twice a day and those milked three times a day will no doubt be viewed by the farm boy and the hired man with the feeling that some one is always taking the joy out of life. The department's milkers have found that milking three times a day produces more milk than twice-a-day milking. In fact, over a short period the increase in production is 12.5 per cent, while over a long period it appears that this increase is even greater. It was noted that cows milked three times a day held up better near the end of the lactation period than cows milked twice a day. The economy of three-times-a-day milking has not yet been accurately estimated, but it will depend upon several factors, chief of which are quantity of production, cost of labor, and value of product.

Seed Grain Planted in 1926 Needs Treatment

Every farmer should treat his seed grain in 1926 in order to prevent smut, says Dr. E. C. Stakman, a plant disease authority of the University of Minnesota. Besides smut in oats, of which there is always a great deal. Doctor Stakman finds there was an unusually large amount of stinking smut of wheat in 1925. In one country elevator 75 per cent of the wheat which was brought in was badly smutted.

Methods of treating seed wheat differ from those of treating oats and barley. Folder No. 13, entitled "Treatments for Seed Grain," explains the use of copper carbonate dust and formaldehyde and can be obtained without cost on application to the agricultural extension service, University farm, St. Paul. Information as to the spraying plan for treating oats and barley can be obtained by writing the plant disease department, University farm, St. Paul.

Santa Barbara Home Wins In Nation Wide Contest For Beauty, Comfort And Utility

contains six rooms, all on one floor, particularly arranged for comfort and convenience.

The exterior, covered with wood siding, is most attractive. The lot was carefully planned and planted according to the directions of a landscape architect. The value of the lot was $2,212, and of the house itself $6,109. The committee showed itself, by using a slightly smaller floor plan, which would permit of later additions if desired, the house could be built at a saving of $1,939.

The furnishings of the home were acquired on a carefully devised budget and cost $1,592. Booklets were distributed to visitors listing the cost of all furniture.

The Santa Barbara Better Homes Committee included a number of people with experience in social undertakings. The report showed that the planning and execution of the local campaign there was done in a thorough and competent manner. Complete local co-operation of organizations of all sorts was forthcoming. Thousands of visitors took advantage of the Santa Barbara program during Better Homes Week.

Dr. John M. Gries, chief of the Division of Building and Housing of the United States Department of Commerce, is a member of the board of directors of Better Homes in America, and Mr. John Ihlder, manager of the Civic Development Department of the United States Department of Commerce, is a member of the advisory council.

SANTA BARBARA, CALIF., divided with Atlanta, Ga., the highest award among the two thousand competitors in the demonstration of Better Homes throughout the United States during Better Homes Week last May.

In both cities, not one but five homes of varying types were demonstrated to meet needs of different groups. In both cities, also, strong emphasis was laid upon the educational character of these community undertakings. The Santa Barbara Better Homes committee was headed by Miss Pearl Chase, Secretary of the Community Arts Association.

The principal purpose of Better Homes in America is to illustrate to the millions of American families of moderate incomes how they can make the most of their homes from the standpoint of beauty, comfort, and utility.

The principal demonstration home in Santa Barbara, pictured above, was called "The Home That Budget Built." It was planned and built by the local committee expressly for Better Homes Week. It

KEEPING COWS

Means $93,660 Extra Income For This County.

An added income of $93,660 a year is enjoyed by Pickaway County farmers indirectly as a result of keeping cows, according to the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics. This income is in the form of a more fertile soil due to the manure of the dairy cows in this county. On the basis of practically a $20.00 fertilizer valuation per animal per year, this means a total of $93,660 added to the richness of the soil in this county every twelve-month.

Manure is a source of the most valuable plant food obtainable, says the Institute, but to preserve it at its highest value or efficiency, it should either be put directly to the field each day or conserved until such a time as the opportunity offers itself to spread it. Feeding trials have proven that an ordinary cow, while putting from 15 to 18 per cent of the total energy of the feed she consumes into milk, actually returns to the soil 80 per cent of the elements of soil fertility in her feed in the form of manure. This has led many dairymen to discover that the purchase of good concentrate feeds for their cows not only more than pays for itself in increased milk production but that it also supplies necessary food to farm crops that are expensive when bought in the form of commercial fertilizer.

FARMERS WANT SEED PROTECTION

Ohio farmers are taking considerable interest in legislative proposals being considered at Washington for control of the importation of foreign clover and alfalfa seeds. At the recent annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation a general resolution asking protection against seeds imported from foreign lands and not adapted to use in the northern sections of the United States was adopted. The following day, upon advice from Washington, directors of the federation passed another resolution asking support from Ohio legislators for the Ketchum Bill. This bill provides for the staining of imported seed so that it can be detected in blended mixtures.

Experiments conducted in Ohio show that large quantities of seed which is unadapted to the climate of this section are sold here every year, and that losses sustained by Ohio farmers run into thousands of dollars.

FATAL HOTEL FIRE

Monticello, N. Y., Feb. 22.—(UP.)—Fire which today completely destroyed Shindler's Prairie House at Hurleyville, seven miles from here, caused the death of nine who were burned before help could arrive, it was believed this afternoon.

Six bodies have been recovered from the ruins and three others missing are believed to have perished.

Two persons are in such serious condition from injuries at the Monticello hospital that they are not expected to live. Twenty-three others in less serious condition are also in the hospital.

None of the dead have been identified.

THE METHODS OF BUSINESS ARE CHANGING

L. E. Hooker Made Interesting Address at Chamber of Commerce Tuesday.

The chamber of commerce listened to a very instructive talk on "Better Business Methods" Tuesday evening by L. E. Hooker, of Detroit, Michigan state manager of the Burroughs Adding Machine company, R. V. Higgs, of Chillicothe, representative for the same company in this district, accompanied Mr. Hooker.

The speaker told of the tremendous advances made in industries in this country in the past twenty years. Such men as Hill, Harriman, Gould, Morgan and Rockefeller were true pioneers, but we have reached the last frontier.

Scientific development of business is now our lot and exploitation has ceased. We must now conserve. The pioneers destroyed buffalo and other big game ruthlessly, they thought it was inexhaustible. It was so with our forests and fuel, such as coal and oil, but these supplies are growing smaller every day. We must conserve.

Out of every ton of coal mined and coked in the beehive coke oven, only 76 pounds is actually saved. Ten thousand feet of gas beside a considerable amount of commercial ammonia and valuable tar, which was not considered has been wasted. Since 1919 these by-products, to a great degree, are now being saved by improved methods, but in great many instances there is still much waste. Beehive coke ovens are still under operation in some districts, near coal mines.

Director of Commerce Hoover has repeatedly sent out warnings to conserve our resources. Distribution and organization are the stepping stones to success, the ratio of production to distribution used to be 70 to 30 percent. This has changed from 33 1-3 in production to 66 2-3. The cost of distribution is too high.

Merchants speak of a gross profit in business but there is no such thing. When you count your overhead, depreciation in stock, credits and other expenses, the average profit dwindles to one and a half per cent. I have often heard merchants say they endeavor to obtain a profit of 33 1-3 per cent on the cost price. Out of a dozen articles how many are left on hand, which later become unseasonable or shelfworn, and must be sold at cost or less than cost? Does he make 33 1-3 per cent? It's the turnover that counts. Some druggists in business forty years carry some stock they purchased the day they started.

The day has gone by for doing business in a haphazard manner. Departmentize your business, no matter how small the credit system, ignorance of your clerks in knowing the goods they sell and the bogie of competition are the bugbears of business. There is no such thing as competition. Merchants in this sized town should cooperate. If you haven't a credit bureau start one at once and protect yourselves.

The great chain stores have come to stay, simply because they are making money. They buy in large quantities and do a cash business. Their turnovers and discounts are enormous. Overhead is kept down to a minimum and their method of doing business can be studied to advantage by every independent merchant. These chain stores do not buy merchandise be it ever so cheap, if they do not need it. True, they buy articles in quantities and sometimes get stuck, but they make it move at a price even at a loss. It behooves the small merchant to be on his guard and his only salvation is to do a cash business, have quick turnovers. Departmentize your stock have monthly inventories. Systemize your business and get rid of deadwood be it stock or clerks.

Authors Seek Protection

It appears that the one country in Europe that lies outside the pale of copyright is Yugo-Slavia. Not only is the foreign author or newspaper not protected, but in the country literary or journalistic work is not recognized as property. An end is to be put to this state of things by a proposed authors' protection bill.

SPOUTS RICHES FOR TEXAS "U"

Oil Piling Up Income as New Wells Are Brought In.

Austin, Tex.—The "oilman's graveyard" is being turned into wealth for the University of Texas. And it's coming so fast the university may acquire more royalty money than it can spend in the immediate future.

At any rate it can't be spent until the legality of the legislative enactment turning the revenue into the available fund from the permanent fund, as provided by the constitution, is determined. And the attorney general of the state has repeatedly ruled it was illegal.

But whether it happens one way or another, there will shortly be such a fund that interest therefrom, which does go to the available fund, will more than carry on the most ambitious building program ever launched by any university. In fact, prospects today point to the University of Texas as one of the richest, if not the richest, school in the world.

It is as if the university, like an impoverished urchin, had come to the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, which in this instance happened to be on university land in Reagan county, Texas. There on May 28, 1923, a rank wildcat well spouted oil. With that there was born the greatest potential oil field in the United States simultaneously with the greatest university in the same vast territory.

In Midst of Big Holdings.

For that well, known as the Santa Rita, belonged to the Texan Oil and Land company and was in the midst of 64 sections on university land, only a small fraction of university holdings, 2,080,000 acres in west Texas counties. And that lonesome wildcat, in a territory which had already known 54 deep dry holes before it was started, was the forerunner of a drilling campaign destined to test out the thousands of acres of university holdings, and which, in fact, has already discovered another mineral resource, potash, with indications that it may be far more valuable than the oil, which is pouring a stream of gold into the coffers of the educational institution.

But only recently has the significance of oil on university land dawned on the patrons of the school, which in attendance compares with some of the larger institutions of higher learning but which, in the terms of Gov. Miriam Ferguson, is an "eyesore" to the people of the state. Plain frame buildings, unpainted, 20 of them, grace the university campus, poor setting, in deed, for the gaining of an education and sufficient only to draw the obprobrious comment of a woman executive.

Checks approximating $100,000 a month, tendered the first of each month for the one preceding, coming from a field whose production is on a gradual rise, and that, too, from an area confined to about three sections, serve to indicate the magnitude of potentialities as affecting Texas' state school. And with 24 producers already, development has only just begun.

The Texan Oil and Land company, discoverer of the field, and its subsidiaries, together with the Big Lake Oil and Land company, have recently announced a drilling program destined to put 32 new wells in the proven area, in addition to a score more now drilling and destined to be producers shortly.

Output on Increase.

Twin producers for the field recently have been brought in twice in a single day and output has been on the jump since the first of the year. For a long time it stood steadily at around 10,000 barrels. Then came a pipe line and contracts for the delivery of more than 500,000 barrels of oil to one of the major companies by freight. From then on it has been one continual jump after another until today production aggregates more than 40,000 barrels.

One-eighth royalty at prevailing prices means that from henceforth until the peak is attained, the university's part of the oil revenue will be greater than $100,000 a month, possibly $200,000 or more, and that multiplied by twelve means more than $1,000,000 a year. Even should that go to the permanent fund, which would permit only of expenditure of interest in school overhead, as required by a building program, the old campus at Austin is due for a change. At once there is a prospect of a great state-supported school being independent of legislative appropriations and free of the usual fight most such schools must wage before the legislatures to get funds required.

A comparatively poor school, like some comparatively poor people, suddenly grown wealthy, the university has opportunity to spend its money with lavish abandon or to bide its time. This question may get in the courts, but it will only be a friendly action to determine the legality of expending the money at once. This test will come as the result of the legislature taking action turning royalty revenues from the permanent to the available fund. Giving sanction to this measure, after the attorney general had advised its illegality, Mrs. Ferguson cited an unkempt campus as being an "eyesore." In which the state could take no pride, and garner approval anyway.

WASHINGTON PROGRAM AT U. B. CHURCH

Delightful Evening at Community House "Patriotic Mother Goose" Playlet.

Over seventy persons, both little and big heartily enjoyed the George Washington program at the U. B. Community house, Monday evening. The occasion was the monthly business and social session of the C. E. societies. Miss Eleanor Pierce, junior superintendent, certainly covered herself with glory in the manner in which the delightful program was arranged and carried out. Mr. Harry Kraft, president, and Rev. Hiles, gave excellent talks on the life of Washington, which were very much enjoyed by the young people. There was a beautiful violin solo by Howard Greeno, a piano solo by Lucile Kirkwood, which was well rendered and sayings of Washington, given by the intermediates. The crowning feature of the evening was the pretty little playlet by the juniors in costume, "Patriotic Mother Goose."

Jack and Jill, Old Mother Hubbard, Little Boy Blue, Contrary Mary, Bo Peep, Little Miss Muffit, Old King Cole, Simple Simon, Tommy Tucker, Jackie Horner, all the children's favorites were there in real life with a bit of praise for Washington. They also gave a pretty little drill and song. A social hour followed during which there was music and dainty refreshments of tiny buckets of ice cream, cakes and coffee.

Under a new order all temporary visitors to the United States will be relieved of the necessity of going to Ellis Island for examination with ordinary immigrants.

The difference between saloons and drunkenness and grief and despair for wife and kiddies is the automobile with its pleasures and happiness and hope. You can't have both.

Did Not Find Favor

In 1858, Charles C. Converse of Erie, Pa. proposed that the coined word "thou," a contraction of "that one," be used to take the place of "one's" that would be third person, common gender. It would solve the question of a pronoun in such a sentence as: "If John Brown or his wife comes I will give thou the message."

WHAT IS TO BE DONE?

"A very difficult question," the President calls the traffic casualties of the time. The figures that he cites—24,000 persons killed in a year upon the streets and highways of the country, and probably more than 500,000 injured. This means that over a period of the same length as our participation in the world war Americans are losing three-fourths as many lives on streets and roads as they lost to German bullets, and running up in addition a non-fatal casualty list thrice as great as they did abroad.

"The president has asked all the governors to appoint delegates to a national safety convention to assemble in March. While we know of no formula to meet the situation he has outlined the conference may write history by focusing public attention on the national aspects of a problem made up of a multitude of incidents at street corners and cross roads. Many communities are at work seeking and applying remedies.

The figures set forth in this article certainly ought to be a very convincing argument for
